OHIO'S FUTURE TAX SYSTEM IN CHAOTIC CONDITION IS SAID

State Committee Has No Recommendation Meeting Shows

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 14.—Ohio's future taxation system is in a chaotic condition, it appeared today.

Plans and suggestions, out of which a system in accord with the new taxation amendment to the Buckeye state's constitution may evolve, remains a jumbled mess.

From surface indications, the statewide taxation committee, selected by Governor Myers Y. Cooper a year ago, does not know when, nor what, it will recommend along lines of proposed taxation laws.

Meeting here Thursday afternoon, the committee was confronted with the fact that many of its subcommittees were not yet ready to make a report.

Before adjourning the committee decided to meet again not later than December 17 at which time it is hoped that some of the subcommittees will be ready to submit partial, if not complete, reports.

The main committee then will submit its report to Governor Cooper who is expected to use the report as the basis for his recommendations for new tax laws which will be embodied in his message to the Ohio legislature. The session will convene here January 5.

The chairman of the committee will select a subcommittee, of ten members to call upon Governor-elect George White, when he takes office January 12, and offer him the services of the committee.

One of the recommendations which has been hurled into the committee's taxation arena is that motor vehicles be relieved of the general property tax. It was suggested by the automotive subcommittee. The subcommittee on real estate recommended a stamp tax on all public documents affecting real estate, such as deeds, leases and mortgages, of 10 cents for each $1,000 face value and that the reappraisals of property be made every four years, instead of every six years, as now required by law, with the county auditor empowered to make reappraisals of valuations during the period between the regular times for reappraisements.

The automotive subcommittee recommended, also, that auto license tag fees be increased so as to boost the annual yield from this source approximately $10,000,000 to make up for elimination of the general property tax on autos. It was estimated that such an increase would raise the license fee to an average of about $10.

The main committee has not yet acted upon the recommendations of the subcommittees on real estate assessment and automobiles. It rejected, for the second time, however, a general principle of tax reduction proposed by E. E. Lamson of Jefferson, member of the subcommittee on agriculture.

Lamson recommended that construction and maintenance of improved highways be provided for solely through taxes, or license fees, levied upon the traffic, that auto license tax fees be increased so as to relieve automobiles of the general property tax, and that the four-cent gasoline tax be reallocated among the municipalities, counties, state, and townships "fairly" and in such a way as to replace all tax levies for road and bridge purposes, and that a "pay-as-you-go" basis be adopted for county and township road construction.

Indications are, however, that the committee will eventually adopt some of Lamson's proposals. They were tabled Thursday after some of the members complained that they are "too general."

WOMAN KILLED AND THREE INJURED

DAYTON, O., Nov. 14.—An automobile collision near here caused the death today of a woman and the injury to two youths and a man.

Mrs. Rose Delker was killed and Alfred Gulick, 14, and Wilson Cook, 15, were injured seriously when the automobile driven by the woman's husband, John Delker, 52, struck the two boys, careened across the tracks of an interurban traction line and overturned in a field.

Gulick was critically hurt. Physicians said that Cook and Delker would live.

Police officers who investigated the accident said they found that Delker lost control of his car while attempting to pass another machine.

GERMAN FLYING BOAT STARTS FOR FRANCE

CALSHOT, Southampton, Eng., Nov. 14.—Braving a heavy fog over the English Channel, the giant flying boat DO-X hopped off from here today for Bordeaux, France, on the third leg of a projected voyage to New York.

The start was made at 11:45 a. m. (6:45 a. m. Eastern standard time), after the giant twelve-motored plane had made several unsuccessful attempts to rise from the water.

There were twelve passengers aboard in addition to the regular crew. A large crowd gathered along the water's edge witnessed the take-off.

During the early morning, it seemed unlikely the DO-X would be able to make the jump to Bordeaux today because of the fog, but Commander Friedrich Christiansen decided that conditions were sufficiently favorable for the flight.

From Bordeaux the liner will proceed to Lisbon, where the trans-Atlantic flight is scheduled to begin.

ADMITS KILLING

Peter Wentala, above former Detroit patrolman who had been dismissed from the police department for drunkenness, has confessed that he killed William Jones in a fist fight in the police station jail, according to police. Jones, intoxicated, had been placed in the same cell after claiming he had killed Jerry Buckley, Detroit radio announcer.

FEAR WICKERSHAM COMMISSION WILL BE UNABLE TO AGREE

Wet Recommendation Would Embarrass President

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Rumor and report filled the capital today as the Wickersham commission went into solitary confinement for ten days to try to arrive at some recommendation concerning prohibition.

The commission is badly split. Not even the secretiveness of the members can conceal that fact.

The hope has been expressed that some sort of a pretty question will be arrived at which will approach unanimity. But it is admitted a forlorn hope. There may be two or three reports finally emerging next month, at least one of which will favor the liberalizing of the Volstead act.

There is vast speculation in Washington as to just how far a majority of the commission will be ready to go in proposing modification toward light wines and beer. There is even more speculation concerning what the attitude of President Hoover will be, when and if a majority of the commission makes such a recommendation.

If, as many believe, a majority of the commission proposes modification it will be a pretty question for Mr. Hoover and, for that matter, for congress as well.

Congress is dry. Of that there can be no doubt. Presumably, Mr. Hoover is also dry, although how dry may be a matter of some dispute.

Be that as it may, it was recalled today, that President Hoover has never committed himself to accept or to endorse the recommendations of this commission, whatever they may ultimately prove to be.

Should a majority of the commission recommend the restoration of beer and the liberalizing of the Volstead act there will be three courses open to Mr. Hoover:

(1) He can forward the report to congress with a favorable recommendation for legislative action.

(2) He can transmit the report with a covering letter expressing disagreement.

(3) He can simply pass it along to congress for its information and guidance without executive recommendation of any kind.

It is hardly conceivable under the circumstances that he could adopt the third course. The commission was his idea and what is probably more important he realizes that the country is looking to him to take some sort of a stand.

His dilemma is acute. To approve a report calling for light wines and beers would be to call down on his head the wrath of the bone drys, without at the same time winning those wets who will be satisfied with nothing less than repeal of the 18th amendment. To approve a dry minority report would be to ignore the very apparent and very real rising tide of resentment against prohibition as is.

To take a neutral or non-committal attitude would invite the resentment of both wets and drys.

INSTRUCTOR BOMBED IN GARAGE

Absence of any tangible clues have baffled authorities in their search for an explanation of the bomb explosion which mangled W. F. Heidegott, Purdue University instructor, as he entered his garage in Lafayette, Ind. Neither Heidegott, near death, nor his wife, could offer any motive for the placing of a crude bomb in the instructor's automobile. Photo shows the demolished machine and Heidegott.

HAMAGUCHI IS NEAR DEATH FROM INJURY INFLICTED BY YOUTH

Opposition To Naval Treaty Inspired Act Is Belief

TOKIO, Nov. 14.—With an assassin's bullet in his abdomen, Premier Yuko Hamaguchi of Japan battled bravely for his life today.

Hours after he was shot down by a young political fanatic while ascending the steps of the Tokyo railway station, the premier's life still hung in the balance, with physicians unable to predict whether he would recover.

So precarious was his condition that for many hours an operation could not be performed for removal of the bullet, and blood transfusions were resorted to in an effort to give him the necessary strength.

Premier Hamaguchi was shot by a 23-year-old youth who gave his name as Tamey Sakyo. He said he came from Nagasaki. Sakyo was a member of the Aikokusha (Love of Country Association), a reactionary patriotic organization.

The attack was believed to have been due to opposition against the London naval treaty, which, certain factors in Japan hold, undermine the defensive strength of the nation, or to dissatisfaction with economic conditions.

On almost the same spot where Premier Hara of Japan was assassinated in November, 1922, Hamaguchi was attacked a few moments before he was to board a train for Okayama prefecture to join the emperor in attending military maneuvers which start today.

The premier had just reached the head of the stairway, accompanied by his secretary, Foreign Minister Shidehara, and other members of his political party, when Sakyo fired.

Hamaguchi fell, but was caught by his secretary and the baron, who immediately carried him into the office of the station master.

Physicians were hurriedly summoned, and the premier's wife and other members of his family arrived on the scene a short while after the attack took place. At first it was reported his condition was not serious, but when a blood transfusion was performed in the station, it became known that the premier had but slight chance of recovery. His second son, Iwane Hamaguchi, supplied the blood for the transfusion.

Hundreds of persons comprising the morning rush hour crowds witnessed the attack. Sakyo was seized immediately and taken to the police station, where he readily confessed the crime, authorities said.

This was the second attempt that has been made upon Premier Hamaguchi's life since he took office on July 2, 1929. Last October a young Japanese sprang with drawn dagger on the running board of an automobile containing the premier as it was leaving Hamaguchi's residence, but the chauffeur swung his wheel sharply and threw the would-be assassin to the ground.

NEW IN HOSEGOV

WEST BRANCH, Ia., Nov. 14.—Newt Butler, the fellow who "licked" Herbert Hoover when they were boys, must face a court summons for having a slot machine in his soft drink parlor.

It was rumored that school boys were patronizing the machine and a deputy sheriff walked into Newt's establishment, gave Butler a court summons and confiscated the machine. The raid likewise revealed two slot machines in the Hoover Hotel which is just across the street.

HUNTERS READY FOR INVASION OF WOODS IN QUEST FOR GAME

Thousands Prepare To Take Advantage Of Open Season

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 14.—Thousands of Ohioans were cleaning their guns, grooming their hounds and making extensive plans today for the opening of the legal hunting season in the Buckeye state.

Approximately 425,000 Ohio nimrods are expected to flock to the woods and fields Saturday, the first day of the season in this state. The hunters have been forcing county, village and township clerks and their deputies to work overtime for the past week or more issuing licenses.

Officials of the fish and game division, state conservation department estimate that between 425,000 and 450,000 hunting licenses will be issued this season. Last year, 422,000 resident hunters secured licenses.

Ohio hunters pay $1 each for their license in addition to a 25 cent fee to the clerk or deputy issuing the license. Non-resident hunters must pay $15 for the right to hunt in this state.

The money received for these licenses is used to help pay the operating costs of the state's fish and game bureau, which is self-sustaining.

Open season for hunting a number of animals and birds begin tomorrow, the most popular of which is the rabbit season, which is open until New Year's Day. The law forbids a hunter to bag more than five rabbits a day. The specified time for hunting the bunnies is from one hour before sunrise until one hour after sunset and the hunter is restricted to the use of a gun or a gun and a dog.

The season for killing possum, raccoon and skunk is open until February 1. The fox season closes January 1.

Muskrat and mink may be killed until March 1.

The open season for ring-neck pheasant and Hungarian partridge lasts until November 25.

PROBE BLASTING OF TREE STUMPS WHICH KILLED SCHOOL BOY

Another Boy Hurt; Stump Falls Into School Building

IRONTON, O., Nov. 14.—An investigation by county authorities was started today into the blasting of tree stumps which resulted in the death of one boy. The possible fatal injury of another and the injury of five others at Kelly's School, three miles north of here yesterday.

The tree stump was blown high in the air by a charge of dynamite and it crashed through the roof of the school building, burying itself in the floor.

James Dean, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Dean, died in an Ironton hospital of a crushed skull a few hours after the accident. Rodney Elam, 11, suffered a severe laceration of his face from the rear of the scalp to the chin. His condition was regarded as critical.

The other children injured were Pearl Crawford, 13, Clyde Avtry, 12; Emma Pancake, 13; Lois Ridgeway, 10, and Clara Tipton, 9. James Nance, the teacher, carried the injured pupils from the wrecked building. There were twenty-three pupils, ranging in age from 9 to 17, in the school.

The blast was set off by workmen who were preparing a nearby highway for paving. The stump weighed about 600 pounds. It was estimated. It was blown 125 yards, further blasting was prohibited pending the outcome of the county's probe.

LYONS PROBES DEBRIS TO RECOVER BODIES OF LANDSLIDE VICTIMS

Believe Fifty Dead; Wreckage Searched For Bodies

LYONS, Nov. 14.—Memories of the war's horrors were brought back sharply to the people of Lyons today as they probed the devastated ruins of scores of houses on picturesque Fournier Hill for the bodies of fifty persons believed to have lost their lives in a series of landslides.

The once picturesque hill community, nestled beneath the spires of St. Jean Cathedral, presented a picture of desolation today. Owing to the fear of further slides, all residents of the neighborhood were evacuated from their homes but many insisted upon aiding police, firemen and soldiers in searching the wreckage for bodies of the dead.

The landslides piled tons of earth and stone to a height of forty feet, obliterating everything in their path but official estimates placed the dead at fifty, with the possibility it may rise even higher.

Nuns from the convent of Notre Dame De Simon, destroyed by the first avalanche, acted as an emergency corps to give some measure of comfort to those rendered homeless by the catastrophe. The cathedral was converted into a hospital, while a long line of ambulances was parked close to the rescue squads in the faint hope some of those taken from the ruins might still be alive.

"JORETTA" COMING

"Joretta" will be introduced to readers of the Gazette next week.

She is the attractive heroine of Mrs. Edna Robb Webster's new serial story by the same name, which will begin in this paper as the present serial "It Was Locked," is concluded.

Mrs. Webster is the author of "Dad's Girl," which also ran in The Gazette and if you liked her first story you will like "Joretta" even better. It is entirely different in type from the present mystery thriller and is distinctly modern and appealing.

CITY EXPENSES CUT THIS YEAR MANAGER TELLS COMMISSION

Municipal Operating Bill Decreased Nearly $8,000

A decrease of $7,915.89 over last year in expenditures made in the four funds for operating the city government in 1930 is shown in a detailed financial statement presented by City Manager M. C. Smith to City Commission at its bi-monthly meeting Thursday night.

Figures contained in the report are actual expenses for the first ten months of this year in each fund for which taxes are levied, but are estimated for the last two months based on expenditures actual disbursements for the identical period in 1929.

Calculating on this basis, Manager Smith places total expenditures in the general, safety, health and service funds at $56,217, whereas in 1929 disbursements in these four funds aggregating $64,132.89 and in 1928 totalled $69,108.69.

Probable total expenditures in the general fund this year amount to $1,702 as compared with $1,904 in 1929 and $12,589 in 1928; expenditures in the safety fund for 1930, $25,873 as compared with $35,431.32 in 1929 and $29,401.22 in 1928; expenses in the health fund for 1930, $4,112, compared with $2,591.03 in 1929 and $2,067.64 in 1928; disbursements in the service fund for 1930, $1,702 as compared with $1,702 in 1929 and $1,702 in 1928.

BRIAND VICTOR IN CONFIDENCE VOTE

PARIS, Nov. 14.—With power and prestige undiminished by unceasing attacks from his political enemies during the last few weeks, Foreign Minister Aristide Briand won an impressive personal victory today when the chamber of deputies accorded the government of Premier Andre Tardieu a vote of confidence.

The vote, 323 to 270, concluded the debate on Briand's foreign policies which had continued uninterrupted since November 2.

The shaggy veteran of the Quai d'Orsay mounted the tribune and in a lengthy speech defended his own policies, lashed out at his opponents and challenged them to "tear up the pact of Locarno" if they do not agree with his way of doing things.

M. Briand bitterly attacked the two-fold campaign which has been waged in France during recent weeks. Its first objective, he said, was to spread fear of a new war among the people of France, and secondly to exploit that fear by insinuation that it was the fault of Briand's policies.

MARION, O., Nov. 14.—K. E. Kunkle, 56, Marion salesman, was killed near here yesterday when he was struck by an Erie railroad train.

SOLDIERS END MOB UPRISING

Martial Law Quiets Peru Rioting

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 14.—Detachments of Peruvian cavalry, infantry and machine-gun companies today continued martial law in the rich Cerro De Pasco copper mining district in the Andes, scene of a savage attack by communist mobs and strikers on foreign residents. Two Americans are slain and thirteen others killed or wounded.

Martial law also was being established at Canete, a mining village on the outskirts of the Cerro De Pasco region, where fifteen Americans, including a number of women, were reported in danger.

United States Ambassador Fred M. Dearing ordered the evacuation of all Americans in the district. Most of them have been escorted by the military into Lima and safety.

Meanwhile, the authorities concentrated their efforts on rounding up communist agitators held responsible for the outbreak. The Peruvian government has promised to do all in its power to safeguard American lives and property.

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., Nov. 14.—Roosevelt Darnell, 25, will die on the gallows here tonight at 9 o'clock unless mercy is granted by Governor William G. Conley. The condemned youth was confident today that he would be granted eleventh-hour clemency.

Darnell was convicted several months ago of the slaying of Clarence Holbrook, who was shot and killed on the morning of last June 5 by a bullet fired through the window of his home. LEAGUE COMMITTEE ADOPTS NEW PLAN FOR LIMITATION OF ARMS

GENEVA, Nov. 14.—The proposal of Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, chief British delegate, for budgetary limitation of war material was adopted today by the preparatory disarmament commission of the League of Nations.

The vote was sixteen to three. Germany, Italy and Russia registered their opposition to the plan.

Ambassador Hugh Gibson, representing the United States, abstained from voting.

Ambassador Gibson informed the delegates that the fact the proposal was impossible of acceptance by the United States obliged him not to cast a vote. In a lengthy speech earlier in the week, the American delegate set forth that his country could not agree to any proposals embodying the budgetary, or indirect method of limitation.

So far as the other nations were concerned, however the United States had no opposition to their agreeing on such a proposal if they saw fit, Ambassador Gibson declared.

Earlier chapters in the romance between the opera singer and Prince Mdivani included that in which Miss McCormick was said to have won the prince's love from Miss Negri, the chapter in which Pola was said to have it back, and that in which Miss McCormick was reported to stipulate that if she married him he would have to become a plain mister instead of a prince.

OHIO LEGION PROBES TEAR GAS BOMBING

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 14.—The tear gas bombing of a St. Clairsville, O., chain grocery store by war veterans during the Armistice Day celebration there, will be investigated by the Ohio American Legion.

State Commander John A. Elden has ordered Dudley A. White, former state commander, to St. Clairsville to secure information regarding the affair.

Possibility that the national headquarters of the legion may make an investigation loomed today following action of the Griffith-Newman post at Waynesboro, Va.

The Virginia post telegraphed Ralph T. O'Neil, national commander of the American Legion, to make an "immediate investigation and repudiation" of the actions of the St. Clairsville Legionnaires. The bombing was referred to as "un-American and not in accordance with American ideals."

"Certainly these men were acting without authority from the state department of the legion," Elden said, "and reports indicate their action was without any capacity as members of the Legion, but we want to know the facts in the case. Our action, if any, will be governed when we receive the report from Mr. White, who is chairman of the grievance committee of the state legion."

PROGRAM TO ASSIST UNEMPLOYED FACES VARIOUS OPINIONS

Confusion Will Block Issue In Congress Is Belief

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—The program of both Republicans and Democratic leaders to rush enactment of unemployment relief legislation at the coming session of congress today appeared headed for confusion, due to conflicting opinions about legislative needs of the country.

Each proposal so far made to relieve unemployment has found opposition. The principal suggestion for immediate relief—a direct appropriation of money to be administered through the American Red Cross—developed so much opposition, it probably will be abandoned before congress convenes. There was general accord on the subject of speeding the government's huge construction program, but there was nothing like agreement over the method.

A warning by Senator Reed (R) of Pennsylvania, looked upon as the "treasury spokesman" in the senate, that the government was facing a deficit at the end of the year, may retard plans for larger federal appropriations on public works. Reed said the present extraordinary one per cent slash in income and corporation taxes authorized would have to be abandoned since it would incur a greater treasury deficit.

Reed also condemned the proposed Red Cross appropriation. He attacked the suggestion as a "dole."

Senator Walsh (D) of Montana, assistant minority leader, also disapproved the "dole plan."

Walsh agreed congress should act to relieve unemployment but instead of urging larger appropriations for public works, declared some efforts should be made to compel immediate action on authorized projects.

"Aside from the construction program and other unemployment relief," Walsh added, "congress should inquire into the subject of providing seed for farmers in drought areas of this year. There should also be some further effort to put the farmer back on his feet."

LEAGUE COMMITTEE ADOPTS NEW PLAN FOR LIMITATION OF ARMS

GENEVA, Nov. 14.—The proposal of Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, chief British delegate, for budgetary limitation of war material was adopted today by the preparatory disarmament commission of the League of Nations.

The vote was sixteen to three. Germany, Italy and Russia registered their opposition to the plan. Ambassador Hugh Gibson, representing the United States, abstained from voting.

Ambassador Gibson informed the delegates that the fact the proposal was impossible of acceptance by the United States obliged him not to cast a vote. In a lengthy speech delegate set forth the American delegate set forth that his country could not agree to any proposals embodying the budgetary, or indirect method of limitation.

PROBE BLASTING OF TREE STUMPS WHICH KILLED SCHOOL BOY

Another Boy Hurt; Stump Falls Into School Building

IRONTON, O., Nov. 14.—An investigation by county authorities was started today into the blasting of tree stumps which resulted in the death of one boy. The possible fatal injury of another and the injury of five others at Kelly's School, three miles north of here, yesterday.

The tree stump was blown high in the air by a charge of dynamite and it crashed through the roof of the school building, burying itself in the floor.

James Dean, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Dean, died in an Iron-ton hospital of a crushed skull a few hours after the accident. Rodney Elam, 11, suffered a severe laceration of his face from the rear of the scalp to the chin. His condition was regarded as critical.

The other children injured were Pearl Crawford, 13, Clyde Avery, 12; Emma Pancake, 13; Lois Ridgeway, 10, and Clara Tipton, 9. James Nance, the teacher, carried the injured pupils from the wrecked building. There were twenty-three pupils, ranging in age from 9 to 17, in the school.

The blast was set off by workmen who were preparing a nearby highway for paving. The stump weighed about 600 pounds, it was estimated. It was blown 125 yards, further blasting was prohibited pending the outcome of the county's probe.

Mary Gets Her Prince At Last

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—Mary McCormick, Civic Opera Company star, and Prince Serge Midval, former husband of Pola Negri, soon will be married, they announced here today.

Miss Negri, motion picture actress, obtained her divorce in Paris October 31 and announced she would devote the rest of her life to art.

Earlier chapters in the romance between the opera singer and Prince Midval included that in which Miss McCormick was said to have won the prince's love from Miss Negri, the chapter in which Pola was said to have it back, and that in which Miss McCormick was reported to stipulate that if she married him he would have to become a plain mister instead of a prince.

FEAR WICKERSHAM COMMISSION WILL BE UNABLE TO AGREE

Wet Recommendation Would Embarrass President

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Rumor and report filled the capital today as the Wickersham commission went into solitary confinement for ten days to try to arrive at some recommendation concerning prohibition.

The commission is badly split. Not even the secretiveness of the members can conceal that fact.

The hope has been expressed that some sort of an opinion may be arrived at which will approach unanimity. But it is admittedly a forlorn hope. There may be two or three reports finally emerging next month, at least one of which will favor the liberalizing of the Volstead act.

There is vast speculation in Washington as to just how far a majority of the commission will be ready to go in proposing modification toward light wines and beer. There is even more speculation concerning what the attitude of President Hoover will be, when and if a majority of the commission makes such a recommendation.

If, as many believe, a majority of the commission proposes modification it will be a pretty question for Mr. Hoover and, for that matter, for congress as well.

Congress is dry. Of that there can be no doubt. Presumably, Mr. Hoover is also dry, although how dry may be a matter of some dispute.

Be that as it may, it was recalled today, that President Hoover has never committed himself to accept or endorse the recommendation of this commission, whatever they may ultimately prove to be.

Should a majority of the commission recommend the restoration of beer and the liberalizing of the Volstead act there will be three courses open to Mr. Hoover:

(1) He can forward the report to congress with a favorable recommendation for legislative action.

(2) He can transmit the report with a covering letter expressing disagreement, or

(3) He can simply pass it along to congress for its information and guidance without executive recommendation of any kind.

It is hardly conceivable under the circumstances that he could adopt the third course. The commission was his idea and what is probably more important he realizes that the country is looking to him to take some sort of a stand.

His dilemma is acute. To approve a report calling for light wines and beers would be to call down on his head the wrath of the bone dries, without at the same time winning those wets who will be satisfied with nothing less than repeal of the 18th amendment.

To approve a dry minority report would be to ignore the very apparent and very real rising tide of resentment against prohibition as is. To take a neutral or non-committal attitude would invite the resentment of both wets and dries.

BRIAND VICTOR IN CONFIDENCE VOTE

PARIS, Nov. 14.—With power and prestige undiminished by unceasing attacks from his political enemies during the last few weeks, Foreign Minister Aristide Briand won an impressive personal victory today when the chamber of deputies accorded the government of Premier Andre Tardieu a vote of confidence.

The vote, 325 to 270, concluded the debate on Briand's foreign policies which had continued uninterrupted since November 2.

The shaggy veteran of the Quai d'Orsay mounted the tribune and in a lengthy speech defended his own policies, lashed out at his opponents and challenged them to "tear up the pact of Locarno" if they do not agree with his way of doing things.

M. Briand bitterly attacked the two-fold campaign which has been waged in France during recent weeks. Its first objective, he said, was to spread fear of a new war among the people of France, and secondly to exploit that fear by insinuation that it was the fault of Briand's policies.

INSTRUCTOR BOMBED IN GARAGE

Absence of any tangible clues have baffled authorities in their search for an explanation of the bomb explosion which mangled W. P. Heidegott, Purdue University instructor, as he entered his garage in Lafayette, Ind. Neither Heidegott, near death, nor his wife, could offer any motive for the placing of a crude bomb in the instructor's automobile. Photo shows the demolished machine and Heidegott.

LYONS PROBES DEBRIS TO RECOVER BODIES OF VICTIMS

Believe Fifty Dead; Wreckage Searched For Bodies

LYONS, Nov. 14.—Memories of the war's horrors were brought back sharply to the people of Lyons today as they probed the devastated ruins of scores of houses on picturesque Fourviere Hill for the bodies of fifty persons believed to have lost their lives in a series of landslides.

The once picturesque hill community, nestled beneath the spires of St. Jean Cathedral, presented a picture of desolation today. Owing to the fear of further slides, all residents of the neighborhood were evacuated from their homes but many insisted upon aiding police, firemen and soldiers in searching the wreckage for bodies of the dead.

The landslides piled tons of earth and stone to a height of forty feet, obliterating everything in their path but official estimates placed the dead at fifty, with the possibility it may rise even higher.

Nuns from the convent of Notre Dame De Simon, destroyed by the first avalanche, acted as an emergency corps to give some measure of comfort to those rendered homeless by the catastrophe. The cathedral was converted into a hospital, while a long line of ambulances was parked close to the rescue squads in the faint hope some of those taken from the ruins might still be alive.

CITY EXPENSES CUT THIS YEAR MANAGER TELLS COMMISSION

Municipal Operating Bill Decreased Nearly $8,000

A decrease of $7,915.89 over last year in expenditures made in the four funds for operating the city government in 1930 is shown in a detailed financial statement presented by City Manager M. C. Smith to City Commission at its bi-monthly meeting Thursday night.

Figures contained in the report are actual expenses for the first ten months of this year in each fund for which taxes are levied, but are estimated for the last two months based on expenditures.

Actual disbursements for the first ten months of November and December in 1929.

Calculating on this basis, Manager Smith places total expenditures in the general safety, health and service funds at $56,217, whereas in 1929 disbursements in these four funds aggregating $64,132.59 and in 1928 totalling $60,108.63.

Probable total expenditures in the general fund this year amount to $11,702 as compared with $10,904 in 1929 and $12,589 in 1928; expenditures in the safety fund for 1930, $25,873 as compared with $35,431.32 in 1929 and $29,401.22 in 1928; expenses in the health fund for 1930, $4,112, compared with $2,591.03 in 1929 and $2,067.64 in 1928; disbursements in the service fund, $1,000.

HAMAGUCHI IS NEAR DEATH FROM INJURY INFLICTED BY YOUTH

Opposition To Naval Treaty Inspired Act Is Belief

TOKIO, Nov. 14.—With an assassin's bullet in his abdomen, Premier Yuko Hamaguchi of Japan battled bravely for his life today.

Hours after he was shot down by a young political fanatic while ascending the steps of the Tokio railway station, the premier's life still hung in the balance, with physicians unable to predict whether he would recover.

So precarious was his condition that for many hours an operation could not be performed for removal of the bullet, and blood transfusions were resorted to in an effort to give him the necessary strength.

Premier Hamaguchi was shot by a 23-year-old youth who gave his name as Tomoe Sakyo. He said he came from Nagasaki. Sakyo was a member of the Aikokusha (Love of Country Association), a reactionary patriotic organization.

The attack was believed to have been due to opposition against the London naval treaty, which, certain factors in Japan hold, undermine the defensive strength of the nation, or to dissatisfaction with economic conditions.

On almost the same spot where Premier Hara of Japan was assassinated in November, 1922, Hamaguchi was attacked a few moments before he was to board a train for Okayama prefecture to join the emperor in attending military maneuvers which start today.

The premier had just reached the head of the gateway, accompanied by his secretary, Foreign Minister Shidehara, and other members of his political party, when Sakyo fired.

Hamaguchi fell, but was caught by his secretary and the baron, who immediately carried him into the office of the station master.

Physicians were hurriedly summoned, and the premier's wife and other members of his family arrived on the scene a short while after the attack took place. At first it was reported his condition was not serious, but when a blood transfusion was performed in the station, it became known that the premier had but slight chance of recovery. His second son, Iwane Hamaguchi, supplied the blood for the transfusion.

Hundreds of persons comprising the morning rush hour crowds witnessed the attack. Sakyo was seized immediately and taken to the police station, where he readily confessed the crime, authorities said.

This was the second attempt that has been made upon Premier Hamaguchi's life since he took office on July 2, 1929. Last October a young Japanese sprang with drawn dagger on the running board of an automobile containing the premier as it was leaving Hamaguchi's residence, but the chauffeur swung his wheel sharply and threw the would-be assassin to the ground.

SOLDIERS END MOB UPRISING

Martial Law Quits Peru Rioting

LIMA, Peru, Nov. 14.—Detachments of Peruvian cavalry, infantry and machine gun companies today continued martial law in the rich Cerro De Pasco copper mining district in the Andes, scene of a savage attack by communist mobs and strikers on foreign residents. Two Americans were slain and thirteen others killed or wounded.

Martial law also was being established at Canete, a mining village on the outskirts of the Cerro De Pasco region, where fifteen Americans, including a number of women, were reported in danger.

United States Ambassador Fred M. Dearing ordered the evacuation of all Americans in the district. Most of them have been escorted by the military into Lima and safety.

Meanwhile, the authorities concentrated their efforts on rounding up communist agitators held responsible for the outbreak. The Peruvian government has promised to do all in its power to safeguard American lives and property.

33 DAYS TO CHRISTMAS

ANNUAL COUNTY FARM BUREAU CAMPAIGN STARTS AT MEETING

The Greene County Farm Bureau Roll Call got under way Wednesday night when 170 Farm Bureau members and leaders enjoyed an appetizing supper and meeting at the Second United Presbyterian Church.

David C. Bradfute, president of the Greene County Farm Bureau, presided at the meeting and pointed out the accomplishments of the organization locally. Among those mentioned were that it fosters and promotes club work and the agricultural extension movement; organizes and promotes co-operative marketing organizations; acts as a co-operative purchasing unit for its members; represents the farmers in legislation and taxation problems, both county, state and nationally; maintains an office for its members which is used by thousands of people annually; disseminates information through this office, county and township meetings and the press.

Morris Langdon, district commodity manager, said that the state organization now handles seven million dollars worth of farm supplies annually, and that this year's volume already amounts to 6,000 tons of fertilizer and 50,000 tons of feed. In both of these commodities, Ohio with Farm Bureaus in other states takes the entire output of a fertilizer and feed plant. Twine, oil, coal, etc., are also purchased cooperatively through the Farm Bureau service organization.

H. N. Morrow, district Farm Bureau Mutual Auto Insurance agent, said that the Ohio Farm Bureau Auto Insurance Co., since its organization four years ago, now has 100,000 policies in eight states, with $70 policies in Greene County. The company has total assets of over $2,000,000. He said the insurance is on a farm risk rate and that less than 1.4 per cent of the policies had been cancelled because of failure to make payment.

E. A. Drake, county agent, is speaking of the relationship of the Farm Bureau to the agricultural extension program said that any definite organization to promote and execute it. The broad educational program reaching men and women, boys and girls, was outlined briefly.

C. P. Becker, director of this district, spoke of the accomplishments of the organization in a state and national way, pointing out that it had saved the farmers millions of dollars through favorable legislation such as taxation, and reduction of freight rates as well as savings in cooperative marketing and purchasing.

Mrs. Elmer Hetsel, secretary of the Greene County Farm Bureau explained that the county had been divided into districts and assigned those present to the captains of the various districts. Captains in charge are: Mrs. Elmer Hetsel, Xenia and Silvercreek Twp.; Roger Collins, Cedarville and Ross; L. D. Welch, Miami and Bath; David C. Bradfute, Caesar-creek and New Jasper; Ray Gar-ringer, Jefferson; Mrs. Ernest Bradford, Spring Valley and Beaver-creek; Henry B. Weller, Sugar-creek.

Thursday morning these 170 membership solicitors with drivers, began calling on the 750 farm prospects who are not members, but who have at some time availed themselves of some local farm bureau service, in an attempt to increase membership of the organization.

Music was furnished by the Cedarville College male quartet.

Declares Prominent American Physician Who Tells Frankly Why He Advises New Flaxolyn Which Brings Quick "Pep" to Appetite; Aids Stomach, Kidneys Liver and Bowels

Doctor Wants Every Person Here to Know About Wonderful New Way to Activate the Organs and Free the Body of Poisons from This Common Ailment

You can never tell—maybe all this "grogginess" and "knocked out" tiredness you have been suffering from, is just the result of repeated attacks of constipation, a common yet vicious disease in this country today.

Thousands of people who formerly found their energy being drained by this insidious ailment, now feel vastly improved, eat with heartier appetites, and sleep more serenely as Flaxolyn gets at the root of the trouble.

Dr. Christian Peterson (M.D.), Los Angeles physician of excellent standing, states in a recent letter: "I have used and recommended Flaxolyn with such good results that I am happy to permit my endorsement to be printed publicly."

Flaxolyn gets results in surprisingly quick time in most all cases of temporary constipation and auto-intoxication, and it is a colon cleanser par excellence. Flaxolyn has my unqualified endorsement and I recommend it as the best herbal formula.

Flaxolyn has gentle diuretic action on the kidneys, to help the body get rid of irritating acids. Flaxolyn activates the liver's bile flow and the stomach's gastric juices, and pepsup the natural muscle action of the bowels.

Please, for your health's sake, get a large economical bottle of the new Flaxolyn. Don't delay your greater enjoyment of life. Money back unless satisfied with your improvement by the sixth pleasant spoonful.

Featured in Xenia by THE SOHN PHARMACY

"This Formula Has My Unqualified Endorsement"
states Dr. Christian Peterson

"Mother Nature herself endows Flaxolyn with many of its health powers," one doctor has said. And this is true.

Flaxolyn is a combination of good old-fashioned sun-dried and air-dried herbs, with highly approved vegetable extracts, bile salts and modern organic medicinals.

Leading doctors the world over, retained to give expert opinion of the Flaxolyn formula, enthusiastically praise its UNUSUAL merit.

GUILD VEHICLE IS BRITISH COMEDY IN THE MODERN MANNER

The first play chosen for presentation by the Theater Guild this winter is a modern comedy of manners, "Hay Fever," by Noel Coward, a witty example of the sort of thing the English playwrights have done inimitably well since the days of the seventeenth century comedies.

It concerns a very casual, rather Bohemian English family with a

GRANDSTAND PAID FOR REPORT SHOWS

Brant U. Bell, treasurer of the Greene County Agricultural Society, revealed Friday that the forthcoming annual financial report of the fair board will show the new grandstand at the Xenia fairgrounds has now been entirely paid for and that the only outstanding indebtedness is $4,500 on the grounds. Although expenses were somewhat greater than usual and receipts fell off to some extent at the 1930 county fair in August, the fair board, with the help of an appropriation amounting to $6,300, including $5,000 received from the county, $800 from the state and $500 from the county for club work, was able to apply $2,500 on its debt and spend $800 for improvements at the fairgrounds during the year. The appropriation annually made by the county, however, is expected to be reduced to approximately $3,500 in 1931.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Whoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God, God dwelleth in him, and he in God. And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him.—I John, iv, 15, 16.

VERGIL VS. VIRGIL

The bimillennial celebration of the birth of the author of the Aeneid has revived the ancient discussion as to whether he signed himself Vergil or Virgil. A correspondent, who seems to have remembered more Latin than most of the late Dr. Anthony's pupils have, writes to The New York Times that in his prep school days "Vergil" was regarded as a scholastic affectation. The same charge would seem to lie with equal justice against "Virgil." Ancient Latin appears to have used "e" and "i" with considerable liberty.

The dispute over the spelling of Vergil's name rocked the ancient world and the middle ages, as well as modern school rooms. The learned George Eliot made one of her fifteenth century characters say to a stranger in Florence:

And now fix your mind on a knotty question—ask yourself whether you are bound to spell Virgil with an i or an e, and say if you do not feel an unwonted clearness on the point. Only if you decide on the i, keep it to yourself till your fortune is made, for the e hath the stronger following in Florence.

Americans do not have to go back 2,000 years to find variations in the spelling of family names. Judge Samuel Sewall, a Harvard product, wrote the name of the buxom heroine of Penacook Island variously as Hannah Dusteron, Dustin and Dustan. The great diarist's own name appears in contemporary documents as both Sewall and Sewell. Some people in this country still spell their names with a cross. Scanning the Aeneid is task enough for the modern school boy, without adding his pite with scholastic logomachy over the spelling of the name that appears on its title page.

COLLEGE STUDENTS AND CARS

Should college students be allowed to have possession of automobiles during term time? This question is an issue in many such institutions. It seems hard to students whose families could afford to give them the use of a car, to be reduced to the pavement, when they are permitted to drive everywhere when at home.

And yet no doubt the possession of these cars does distract many of these fellows from their real work. Much of their time during week-ends seems to be spent in driving around the country to see their girl friends and attend the football games. That is quite a change from the serious old scholastic days when boys were sent to college to study.

The college authorities that have to wrestle with this problem are to be sympathized with. Much might be made to depend on the scholarship of students. A boy who is well up in his classes can be given privileges.

GROUCH

"Go 'way from me," says the Grouch. "I don't want to talk to you—to you or to anybody else."

"If I talk to you, I might forget I'm mad. Or if I don't forget it, I'll probably say something I oughtn't to say. I'll insult you, I'll hurt your feelings. . . . You'll be angry at me. I'll be mad at YOU for being angry at ME. I'll drive you away, hurt. I'll know I ought to call you rascal and apologize, and I don't want to apologize today. I don't feel in the mood for apologizing. So I WON'T apologize and I'll feel all the worse for NOT apologizing."

"I've got a grouch. Nobody knows what a big grouch I've got. It's turning to poison in me. It's fuming and fermenting and boiling away. I'm full of gall and wormwood and asafetida and I'M GLAD OF IT! Keep away from me! It isn't your fault, and it certainly isn't MY fault. . . . Maybe I got out on the wrong side of the bed. . . . Beds shouldn't have any sides. . . . That might stop grouches. . . . Nonsense! Nothing can stop grouches. They happen."

"You eat something you shouldn't eat and it upsets you. Or you do something you shouldn't do and you're ashamed and take it out on other people. . . . You slam doors, maybe. Funny things about doors. Grouches slam them. Why do they do it? Maybe because when they were little children, the first thing they were taught was NOT to slam doors. Afterwards, when they're grown up but act like children in a temper, they rebel against manners and slam a door just to show how independent they are."

"But just the same, you needn't think I've kidded myself into being in a good humor again. I've still got my grouch. I'm still mad. I'm 'oison oak. I'm flypaper. I'm a stinging nettle. Don't touch me, don't talk to me, let me alone. Put out the sun, cover up the moon, rub out the stars, find some dark and gloomy place where the bats are flying and no silly little birds are trying to be happy. . . . I'll take my grouch and be happy."

"I'll return tomorrow—with a sheepish, apologetic look on my face—hoping nobody notices me, hoping they've all got bad memories, hoping nobody asks me anything about my grouch. . . . But right now I'm mad. Lemme alone! Go 'way from me!"

That's what The Grouch said. What makes us go crazy like that?

When and by whom was the American Red Cross founded? The American Red Cross society was formed in 1881 under the leadership of Clara Barton, who acted as the first president. Congress, recognizing the important relations between the Red Cross and the army and navy in time of war, and the importance of a thoroughly national society, by special act, approved Jan. 5, 1905, dissolved the society then existing and incorporated a new organization to be operated under government supervision.

In order to get revenge, Jesse joined Quantrill's guerrillas and soon earned a name for reckless daring. He was outlawed in 1886. Finally Governor Crittenden of Missouri offered a reward of $10,000 for his capture, dead or alive, and tempted by this bribe, two members of his own band, Robert and Charles Ford, killed him in his home, at St. Joseph, Mo., April 3, 1882.

W. C. T. U.

When, where, and by whom was the Woman's Christian Temperance Union founded?

Sixteen states were represented at the convention. Conventions have been held annually since then.

Bo-Broadway

—By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE—

"THEM'S DEMOCRATS" NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.—

The day after election an expensive motor car raced down Park Ave., a siren going full blast. All traffic swung aside to facilitate its progress. Lolling back in the cushions were two portly gents smiling broadly and puffing contentedly at big fat cigars.

The chauffeur of my taxicab regarded the occupants narrowly as they swung by and then, turning to me, said:

"Them's Democrats!"

When they had the Arms Conference some years ago in Washington, Mr. H. G. Wells was hired by a Park Row newspaper to "cover" the story and detail his reaction. A day or so prior to the opening of the conference he had a cup of coffee, when Alice, the colored waitress, said to me:

"Who is dis yeah Aitch Gee Wells dey's all makin' so much fuss about, eatin' lunch wif de Boss today?"

I explained as best I could, but I saw Alice wasn't impressed. "Ah shined up de silver," she said, "got out de bes' tablecloth an' napkins wifout no holes in 'em, put a couple o' cannations on de table, an' when he was leavin' helped him on wif his coat. An' what you think he slips me? A dime! A thin DIME!"

"You shouldn't look at it in that light, Alice," I told her. "Think of the favor Mr. H. G. Wells conferred by giving you the Bragging Privilege on him, in that direction. You can travel the rest of your life with High Browns, adroitly manipulating the conversation around to H. G. Wells, and then recounting the fact that you once slipped him liver and onions at the lunch table. Your criticism of the Great Man, I think, is ill-founded."

"Oh, no sub," she assured me hastily. "Ah ain't criticin' Misto Aitch Gee Wells. All Ah's sayin' is, dat he's a piker!"

OVER-PRODUCTION NOT CAUSE OF DEPRESSION, SAYS U. S. ECONOMIST

—CHARLES P. STEWART—

WASHINGTON.—"Absurd!"

crisply answered Commissioner Ethelbert Stewart, of the labor department's bureau of statistics, to the suggestion that overproduction is, to any appreciable extent, responsible for today's economic depression and unemployment.

"Oct. 23, 1929," he continued, "the market crashed. 'Hundreds of industries' stocks slumped simultaneously."

"Is it likely that all those industries had so exactly synchronized over-production that all felt its effects on the same day of trading?"

"Nonsense!"

Well, then, has under-consumption, as some folk prefer to express it, anything to do with the prevailing stringency? The commissioner, however, brushed the under-consumption explanation aside as precisely equivalent to the over-production theory—differently worded, merely.

"In here an industry and there an industry," he conceded, "a certain measure of so-called over-production does occur, from time to time, due to the increasing use of machinery."

"It requires labor readjustments, but is not an important item in the industrial total."

Commissioner Stewart, it is fair to say, discards over-production (or under-consumption) as the principal cause of our own (and the rest of the world's) present hard times, against the protests of many of our foremost business experts.

Perhaps these individuals object to hearing it pooh, poohed because it is the only cause they can think of—or perhaps they can think of others that they do not care to mention.

At any rate, we can accept Commissioner Stewart's views, if we like, in preference to the conflicting views of almost any number of rival authorities, and possibly still be on the right side of the argument. As an economist, the commissioner ranks among his generation's greatest—in the labor field, especially, without even an equal.

Nevertheless, Statistician Stewart's "Absurd!" to the over-production diagnosis of the 1929 market crash and its subsequent period of industrial malaise leaves us out on a limb for any diagnosis whatever to account for the disorder.

The government does have some specialists with theories on the subject, but they do not discuss these theories with the least enthusiasm.

The fact is the government specialists with the cleanest cut ideas concerning the existing practically worldwide industrial slackness evidently have a shrewd suspicion that they would not make themselves overly popular with their superiors by talking freely.

Besides if an enterprising reporter after laboriously assembling what he conceived to be a valuable symposium of all the ablest specialists' opinions and boiling them down together were to reveal the essence of them as:

"There is no money enough to go around!"

"Naturally with one voice the entire public would exclaim: 'Well, for heaven's sake! As if at the lunch table. Your criticism of the Great Man, I think, is ill-founded."

"Oh, no sub," she assured me hastily. "Ah ain't criticin' Misto Aitch Gee Wells. All Ah's sayin' is, dat he's a piker!"

we didn't know that already!"

For all that, there is a surprising concurrence of the government's specialists in just that verdict.

To elaborate a little, they say: "There was so-and-so much gold in the world before the war."

"There is not much more today than there was then, but world trade has increased enormously. That is to say, relatively the world's gold supply has shrunk greatly."

"Consequently gold is increasing in value. It will buy more and more. In other words, prices are falling."

Well and good from my standpoint. Moreover, I had observed it. I had to buy an overcoat recently and I was able to get a better one for less money (despite the Hawley-Smoot tariff) than the last time. Hosannahs of praise (so far as I am concerned) for the shrinking gold supply! I hope it shrinks to the size of a postage stamp.

"Yes, to be sure," rejoined the specialist, adding darkly, "while your job lasts."

Huh? What's that about my job?

Why, you see, it's like this, explain the specialists—

"It makes times so darn tight. 'Gold (that is, money) is advancing now about 19 per cent a year."

"Nineteen per cent is more than any investment will pay. A capitalist makes more hanging on to his cash, and letting it increase in value, than he can by putting it into anything. Oh! he may loan it out for 90 days at a time, but he's too wise to tie it up anywhere."

"True, bank interest rates are low—but what good does it do a would-be borrower to have his banker quote him a low interest rate, if the banker will not let him have a cent on any terms?"

And when will this stop—and money come out again, re-engage in industry?

"The capitalists' resources are not all in cash, of course," answer the specialists. "They also have other properties. Ultimately their gold will cease to increase in value sufficiently to offset losses on these other properties. They will loosen up when that day arrives."

One can see why a mere government specialist cannot afford to disburse like this for publication. Capitalists inevitably would dislike him for it, and it might militate against his promotion.

Doctor Quotes Diet In Arthritis

—BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Still the most fashionable idea about diet in arthritis is to eliminate meat. It goes back at least as far as Dr. Alexander Hargraves' celebrated and once popular book, "Uric Acid." The idea has been completely exploded as a scientific theory. But its soul goes marching on. One of the worst cases of arthritis I ever saw was in the person of a woman who had always been a militant vegetarian.

Her father had written a book on vegetarianism and from her cradle she had been compelled to forego the pleasures of a meaty diet. On the other hand, dogs, who eat almost nothing but meat seldom have arthritis.

The most complete recent studies of the nutrition of patients with arthritis have been made by Pemberton of Philadelphia. He believes the changes in the joints can be explained on the basis of chemical changes. He found the general rate of nutrition (basal metabolism) was lowered, as well as the local rate of nutrition in and around the joints.

Pemberton's plan for diet in arthritis is to cut down on the starches and sugars. As protein is converted into sugar 50 per cent he also reduces that. A typical day's diet as advocated by him is:

Breakfast
1 apple ..... 150 gm. 72

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Whoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God, God dwelleth in him, and he in God, And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us, God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him.—I John, iv, 15, 16.

VERGIL VS. VIRGIL

The bimillennial celebration of the birth of the author of the Aeneid has revived the ancient discussion as to whether he signed himself Vergil or Virgil. A correspondent, who seems to have remembered more Latin than most of the late Dr. Anthon's pupils have, writes to The New York Times that in his prep school days "Vergil" was regarded as a scholastic affection. The same charge would seem to lie with equal justice against "Virgil." Ancient Latin appears to have used "e" and "i" with considerable liberty.

The dispute over the spelling of Vergil's name rocked the ancient world and the middle ages, as well as modern school rooms. The learned George Eliot made one of her fifteenth century characters say to a stranger in Florence:

And now fix your mind on a knotty question—ask yourself whether you are bound to spell Virgil with an i or an e, and say if you do not feel an unwonted clearness on the point. Only if you decide on the i, keep it to yourself till your fortune is made, for the e hath the stronger following in Florence.

Americans do not have to go back 2,000 years to find variations in the spelling of family names. Judge Samuel Sewall, a Harvard product, wrote the name of the buxom heroine of Penacook Island variously as Hannah Duston, Dustin and Dustan. The great diarist's own name appears in contemporary documents as both Sewall and Sewell! Some people in this country still spell their names with a cross. Scanning the Aeneid is task enough for the modern school boy, without adding his pite with scholastic logomachy over the spelling of the name that appears on its title page.

COLLEGE STUDENTS AND CARS

Should college students be allowed to have possession of automobiles during term time? This question is an issue in many such institutions. It seems hard to students whose families could afford to give them the use of a car, to be reduced to the pavement, when they are permitted to drive everywhere when at home.

And yet no doubt the possession of these cars does distract many of these fellows from their real work. Much of their time during week-ends seems to be spent in driving around the country to see their girl friends and attend the football games. That is quite a change from the serious old scholastic days when boys were sent to college to study.

The college authorities that have to wrestle with this problem are to be sympathized with. Much might be made to depend on the scholarship of students. A boy who is well up in his classes can be given privileges.

GROUCH

"Go 'way from me," says the Grouch. "I don't want to talk to you—to you or to anybody else."

"If I talk to you, I might forget I'm mad. Or if I don't forget it, I'll probably say something I oughtn't to say. I'll insult you, I'll hurt your feelings. . . . You'll be angry at me. I'll be mad at YOU for being angry at ME. I'll drive you away, hurt, I'll know I ought to call you back and apologize, and I don't want to apologize today. I don't feel in the mood for apologizing. So I WON'T apologize and I'll feel all the worse for NOT apologizing."

"I've got a grouch. Nobody knows what a big grouch I've got. It's turning to poison in me. It's fuming and fermenting and boiling away. I'm full of gall and wormwood and asafetida and I'M GLAD OF IT! Krep away from me! It isn't your fault, and it certainly isn't MY fault. . . . Maybe I got out on the wrong side of the bed. . . . Beds shouldn't have any sides. . . . That might stop grouches. . . . Nonsense! Nothing can stop grouches. They happen."

"You eat something you shouldn't eat and it upsets you. Or you do something you shouldn't do and you're ashamed and take it out on other people. . . . You slam doors, maybe. Funny things about doors. Grouches slam them. Why do they do it? Maybe because when they were little children, the first thing they were taught was NOT to slam doors. Afterwards, when they're grown up but act like children in a crupper, they rebel against manners and slam a door just to show how independent they are."

"But just the same, you needn't think I've kidded myself into being in a good humor again. I've still got my grouch. I'm still mad. I'm not on oak, I'm flypaper. I'm a stinging nettle. Don't touch me, don't talk to me, let me alone. Put out the sun, cover up the moon, rub oil the stars, find some dark and gloomy place where the bats are flying and no silly little birds are trying to be happy. . . . I'll take my grouch and be happy."

"I'll return tomorrow—with a sheepish, apologetic look on my face—hoping nobody notices me, hoping they've all got bad memories, hoping nobody asks me anything about my grouch. . . . But right now I'm mad. Lemme alone! Go 'way from me!"

That's what The Grouch said. What makes us go crazy like that?

When and by whom was the American Red Cross founded?

The American Red Cross society was formed in 1881 under the leadership of Clara Barton, who acted as the first president. Congress, recognizing the important relations between the Red Cross and the army and navy in time of war, and the importance of a thoroughly national society, by special act, approved Jan. 5, 1905, dissolved the society then existing and incorporated a new organization to be operated under government supervision.

Jesse James was born in Clay county, Missouri, in 1847. During the Civil war his family were southern in their sympathies and consequently were persecuted by the Union neighbors. In order to get revenge, Jesse joined Quantrell's guerrillas and soon earned a name for reckless daring. He was outlawed in 1886. Finally Governor Crittenden of Missouri offered a reward of $10,000 for his capture, dead or alive, and tempted by this bribe two members of his own band, Robert and Charles Ford, killed him in his home, at St. Joseph, Mo., April 3, 1882.

W. C. T. U.

When, where, and by whom was the Woman's Christian Temperance Union founded?

The W. C. T. U. had its origin in the great temperance crusade of 1874. A call was issued from Chautauqua in August of that year, signed by Mrs. Mattie McClellan Brown, Mrs. Jennie Fowler Willing, Mrs. Emily Huntington Miller, and others, summoning a national convention of temperance women to be held in Cleveland, O., Nov. 17, 1874. Sixteen states were represented at the convention. Conventions have been held annually since then.

"THEM'S DEMOCRATS"

NEW YORK CITY, N. Y.—The day after election an expensive motor car raced down Park Ave., a siren going full blast. All traffic swung aside to facilitate its progress. Lolling back in the cushions were two portly gentlemen smiling broadly and puffing contentedly at big fat cigars.

OVER-PRODUCTION NOT CAUSE OF DEPRESSION, SAYS U. S. ECONOMIST

WASHINGTON.—"Absurd!"

cries answered Commissioner

Ethelbert Stewart, of the labor department's bureau of statistics,

to the suggestion that overproduction is, to any appreciable extent, responsible for today's economic depression and unemployment.

"Oct. 22, 1929," he continued,

"the market crashed.

"Hundreds of industries' stocks slumped simultaneously.

"Is it likely that all those industries had so exactly synchronized over-production that all felt its effects on the same day of trading?"

"Nonsense!"

Well, then, has under-consumption, as some folk prefer to express it, anything to do with the prevailing stringency? The commissioner, however, brushed the under-consumption explanation

aside as precisely equivalent to the over-production theory—differently worded, merely.

"In here an industry and there an industry," he conceded, "a certain measure of so-called over-production does occur, from time to time, due to the increasing use of machinery.

"It requires labor readjustments,

but is not an important item in the industrial total."

Commissioner Stewart, it is fair to say, discards over-production

(or under-consumption) as the principal cause of our own (and the rest of the world's) present hard times, against the protests of many of our foremost business experts.

Perhaps these individuals object to hearing it pooh, pooh-ed because it is the only cause they can think of—or perhaps they can think of others that they do not care to mention.

At any rate, we can accept Commissioner Stewart's views, if we like, in preference to the conflicting views of almost any number of rival authorities, and possibly still be on the right side of the argument. As an economist, the commissioner ranks among his generation's greatest—in the labor field, especially, without even an equal.

Nevertheless, Statistician Stewart's "Absurd!" to the over-production diagnosis of the 1929 market

crash and its subsequent period of industrial malaise leaves us out on a limb for any diagnosis whatever to account for the disorder.

The government does have some specialists with theories on the subject, but they do not discuss these theories with the least enthusiasm.

"The fact is the government specialists with the cleanest cut ideas concerning the existing practically worldwide industrial slackness evidently have a shrewd suspicion that they would not make themselves overly popular with their superiors by talking freely.

Besides if an enterprising reporter after laboriously assembling what he conceived to be a valuable symposium of all the ablest specialists' opinions and boiling them down together were to reveal the essence of them as:

"There is no money enough to go around—

"Naturally with one voice the entire public would exclaim:

"Well, for heaven's sake! As if at the lunch table. Your criticism of the Great Man, I think, is ill-founded."

"Oh, no suh," she assured me hastily. "Ah ain't criticism! Mist

Atch Gee Wells. All Ah's sayin' is, dat he's a piker!"

"We didn't know that already!"

For all that, there is a surprising concurrence of the government's specialists in just that verdict.

To elaborate a little, they say:

"There was so-and-so much gold in the world before the war.

"There is not much more today than there was then, but world trade has increased enormously.

That is to say, relatively the world's gold supply has shrunk greatly.

"Consequently gold is increasing in value. It will buy more and more. In other words, prices are falling."

Well and good from my standpoint. Moreover, I had observed

it. I had to buy an overcoat recently and I was able to get a better one for less money (despite the Hawley-Smoot tariff) than the last time. Hosannahs of praise (so far as I am concerned) for the shrinking gold supply! I hope it shrinks to the size of a postage stamp.

"Yes, to be sure," rejoins the specialist, adding darkly, "while your job lasts."

Huh? what's that about my job?

Why, you see, it's like this, explain the specialists—

"It makes times so darn tight.

"Gold (that is money) is advancing now about 19 per cent a year.

"Nineteen per cent is more than

THREE TEAMS FALL IN VOLLEY TOURNAY BATTLES THURSDAY

The second round of the Central senior high volleyball tournament was held Thursday and three more teams fell by the wayside. In one of the best played games to date in the elimination series Indiana defeated Purdue 24 to 23. In was Indiana's second victory by a one-point margin and was a thriller from start to finish. Lane played an exceptionally good game at the net for the winners with Diamond leading the attack on the serves. For Purdue Luttrell, Edgington and Jeffries made the best showing.

Being weakened by the absence of two of its star players North-western took a little beating at the hands of Chicago. With Dalton and Ringer out of the Wildcats lineup the Maroons rolled up a one-sided score of 65 to 33 against their weakened opponents. Webster, Funderburg and Thomas led the attack for the winners. Whittington and C. Harner gave all they had for the losers.

Illinois piled up a 45 to 25 advantage over a weak Southern California team in the third senior high contest of the day. Jones, Conner and Lloyd looked best for Illinois while Truesdale and Huston stood out in the play of California.

In the third round of the junior high series played at four o'clock Wooster came back in the second half and defeated the University of Dayton 47 to 29 after trailing 22 to 10 at the close of the first half. Latimer was the whole change in the play of Wooster during the second period playing here there and everywhere to force the apparent winners into submission. Latimer was helped by Dorman and Strawser in warding off the strong Dayton outfit. Glenn, Brown and Chambliss showed to advantage for the losers.

Carideo-Brill-Schwartz-Savoldi. They may not call them the "Four Horsemen" but these Notre Dame backfield acres, playing with all (and some think more) of the dash and skill of their famous predecessors are dealing death and destruction to the championship hopes of every team faced this season.

The glamour and glory of the original Four Horsemen of Notre Dame have never quite passed from memory of football fans but Rockne's backfield quartet this fall is doing much to make the public forget the performances of Stuhldreher, Crowley, Layden and Miller each of whom was a superlative player.

Stuhldreher, quarterback, was the spark plug, the field marshal of this matchless quartet, just as Carideo, All-American quarterback last season, is the directing genius of the present backfield combination, although he rarely carries the ball himself.

The Lang Chevrolet Co. independent basketball team, which has already begun practice, will be the first good team to represent Xenia in pro circles in years. Included on the squad is Bill LeSourd, southpaw forward, who starred for Xenia Central High and later at Ohio Wesleyan, being captain of the Bishops in his senior year; Bob Yeakley, Fred "Buildup" Smith, "Sam" Huston, and Bob "Butch" Genger, all former high school luminaries; Joe Little, a great running guard, who has played for a number of seasons before graduating last June; Lee Ruse, who is supposed to be as good at basketball as he is at softball and baseball; Noland Putnam, former Kenyon College star, and possibly Walter "Pinkie" Wilson, Central High coach, who played plenty of basketball for Muskingum College.

Only eight elevens now remain in the select class of unbeaten and untied major college teams and no team has escaped being scored upon. Fordham being the last to lose this latter distinction last Saturday. Fordham, Marquette, Alabama, Utah, Northwestern, Oregon, Washington State and to be sure, Notre Dame, are the teams which have been able to avoid defeats and ties.

RED CROSS STARTS ANNUAL ROLL CALL IN GREENE COUNTY

The 1931 American Red Cross Roll Call, which started November 11 and will continue until midnight November 27, has already gotten underway in Greene County, according to reports received from Bath Twp., Friday.

George E. Dignam Post of the American Legion in Osborn is in charge of the drive in Bath Twp. The Rev. Harvey E. Crowell, Osborn, and Lieut. Frederick M. Hopkins Jr., of the Fairfield Air Depot, are the two representatives of the Greene County Chapter of the Red Cross in Bath Twp. Supt. R. J. Warner of the Bath Twp. Consolidated School has reported to the local chapter that all teachers, bus drivers and janitors of the schools have subscribed to the Roll Call 100 per cent.

The lineups of the chairmen in charge of the roll call in the various townships of the county will be announced the first of next week, according to Miss Emma F. Lyon, executive secretary of the Greene County Chapter.

EAST HIGH TO PLAY GLENDALE ELEVEN

East High School gridders will face Glendale High School's grid eleven in a return game at Cox Athletic Field Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and are hoping to repeat last week's 27 to 0 triumph over the Queen City team, played at Cincinnati. East defeated the O. S. and S. O. Home in a practice game earlier in the season. Next weekend East High also has a tentative home game and on Thanksgiving Day the Xenia eleven will probably play a game on the Witherspoon gridiron preliminary to the yearly Witherspoon University-West Virginia State Turkey Day classic.

Attention of hunters is being called by Ernest L. Harner, Greene County game warden, to a recent change in the game laws of which a majority of sportsmen are not familiar. The bag limit on Hungarian partridges has been reduced from six to four a day, it is announced. The hunting season for rabbits, partridges and pheasants begins next Saturday.

ADVICE TO HUNTERS

Sportsman Tells Where Game Abounds In Ohio; Greene Boasts Pheasants

(Written exclusively for International News Service, by James W. Stuber, secretary of the Outdoor Writers' Association of America.)

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 13.—The hunting season which opens in Ohio November 15th will bring out a majority of the approximately half million hunters in Ohio. Over 475,000 hunters licenses will be issued according to estimates of the State Division of Conservation.

Landowners and tenants are not required to purchase licenses for their own lands. The League of Ohio Sportsmen which represents 50,000 organized hunters and fishermen is asking all its members to seek permission before hunting on any farmer's lands and to respect the landowners property rights. Farmers this year in many parts of Ohio are more liberal and are granting permission to hunt to those who request it. "If its worth having, its worth asking for," League of Ohio Sportsmen officials say.

The Conservation Council using its authority granted under the Conservation Act, has reduced the bag limit on Hungarian partridges from six to four birds per day, as a conservation measure to give the birds a chance to propagate and to prevent depletion. Hungarians are plentiful in northwestern Ohio where they seem to find the most suitable habitat. A Hungarian partridge will weigh about twelve ounces and four birds will make a good game dinner for the average family. They are twice as large as quail. There is no change on ring-neck pheasants, on which the law places a limit of two cock birds per day, with not more than two day's kill in possession at any one time. Pheasants are plentiful in nearly all central Ohio counties. Due to the dry season rabbits are unusually plentiful especially in southern Ohio. Ohio hunters are looking forward to an unusually good game season.

Wild geese and ducks are plentiful at Lake St. Marys. Accommodations for sportsmen can be secured at the hotel at Celina or St. Marys or of farmers on the south side of the lake.

The places to go for the following game are:

Hungarian partridges: Lucas, Van Wert, Henry, Defiance, Paulding, Wood, Hancock, Putnam, Hardin, Clark and Champaign Counties.

Ring-neck pheasants: Shelby, Champaign, Miami, Montgomery, Logan, Marion, Wyandot, Union, Delaware, Clark, Preble, Greene, Madison, Fayette, Morrow, Licking, Franklin, Pickaway and Mercer Counties.

Rabbits: Plentiful in all counties, but most plentiful in hill lands in southern and eastern Ohio.

Hunters are warned not to disturb deer in southern Ohio. Deer from the Roosevelt Game Preserve are scattering through Adams and Scioto County hills. Wild turkeys are also protected.

Hunters should shop early for their hunters licenses and not wait for the last minute rush. Sunday is closed time on all game. The bag limit on rabbits is five in one day.

Hunters must carry their licenses and exhibit them upon demand to a game protector or any person.

OLD MAN CALCULUS STIFF FOE FOR GRID STARS

By LES CONKLIN
(I. N. S. Sports Writer)
Copyright, 1930, by I. N. S.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Notre Dame's Ramblers are taking their week-end examinations this week and Coach Rockne is said to fear that a few of the boys may be unable to hurdle old man calculus. But with ten substitute teams ready to take the field and march down it as well, Knute should not lose any sleep over the matter.

At Columbus, in New York, Coach Lou Little never worries about mid-semester exams, once the boys are safely enrolled. What grips Little is getting his prospective stars past the entrance examinations. It is told in some quarters when the former Georgetown mentor came to New York he brought along eleven good men and true, and that all but one of them failed to qualify scholastically.

The other extreme is illustrated by an incident at a small university where gridiron heroes run to the strong back and weak mind type. Although students were required to take the mark of only fifty per cent in their exams, a question was raised concerning the passing mark given to the fullback in chemistry. The president of the university asked the professor of chemistry to supply full details.

"I asked the lad two questions," the professor explained, "and he passed the test by answering one correctly. 'First I asked him the color of blue vitriol. He answered 'red,' and that was wrong. Then I asked him what the formula H<sub>2</sub>O means. He said he didn't know, and that was right."

THREE TEAMS FALL IN VOLLEY TOURNEY BATTLES THURSDAY

The second round of the Central senior high volleyball tournament was held Thursday and three more teams fell by the wayside. In one of the best played games to date in the elimination series Indiana defeated Purdue 24 to 23. In was Indiana's second victory by a one-point margin and was a thriller from start to finish. Lane played an exceptionally good game at the net for the winners with Diamond leading the attack on the serves. For Purdue Luttrell, Edgington and Jeffries made the best showing.

Being weakened by the absence of two of its star players Northwestern took a real beating at the hands of Chicago. With Dalton and Ringer out of the Wildcats lineup the Maroons rolled up a one-sided score of 65 to 33 against their weakened opponents. Webster, Vanderburg and Thomas led the attack for the winners. Whittington and C. Harner gave all they had for the losers.

Illinois piled up a 45 to 25 advantage over a weak Southern California team in the third senior high contest of the day. Jones, Conner, and Lloyd looked best for Illinois while Truesdale and Huston stood out in the play of California.

In the third round of the tournament, Wooster came back in the second half and defeated the University of Dayton 47 to 29 after trailing 22 to 10 at the close of that period. Latimer was the whole change in the play of Wooster during the second period playing here there and everywhere to force the apparent winners into submission. Latimer was helped by Dorman and Strasser in warding off the strong Dayton outfit. Glenn Brown and Chambliss showed to advantage for the losers.

BOWLING

Winning at least two and more often three straight games in the weekly Business Men's League bowling match is becoming a commonplace affair for the six-man team composed of R. Smith, A. Boxwell, Moll, Lang, Fuller and Clevenger, which has dominated the league from the start this season. Neither of the other two competing teams has had a look-in at any time. This sextet turned in scores of 969, 932 and 967 and again won three in a row Wednesday night. Clevenger having a series of 580. Box scores:

Turning the tables, the Schmidt Oil Co. bowling team won two out of three games from the champion Gr. Co. L. Co. quintet in a Recreation League match Thursday night, thereby whittling the lead of the league leaders to two full games. The league champs won the first game, 929 to 858, but the second-placers took the next two by margins of 963 to 939 and 988 to 979. Bill Smith had a series of 599 for the winners and Ben Dice topped the losers with a three-game total of 626. Box score:

CHANGE BAG LIMIT

Attention of hunters is being called by Ernest L. Harner, Greene County game warden, to a recent change in the game laws of which a majority of sportsmen are not familiar. ## ADVICE TO HUNTERS

Sportsman Tells Where Game Abounds In Ohio; Greene Boasts Pheasants

(Written exclusively for International News Service, by James W. Stuber, secretary of the Outdoor Writers' Association of America.)

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 13.—The hunting season which opens in Ohio November 15th will bring out a majority of the approximately half million hunters in Ohio. Over 475,000 hunters licenses will be issued according to estimates of the State Division of Conservation.

Landowners and tenants are not required to purchase licenses for their own lands. The League of Ohio Sportsmen which represents 50,000 organized hunters and fishermen is asking all its members to

OLD MAN CALCULUS STIFF FOE FOR GRID STARS

By LES CONKLIN
(I. N. S. Sports Writer)
(Copyright, 1930, by I. N. S.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Notre Dame's Ramblers are taking their mid-semester examinations this week and Coach Rookne is said to fear that a few of the boys may be unable to hurdle old man calculus. But with ten substitute teams ready to take the field and march down it as well, Knute should not lose any sleep over the matter.

At Columbia, in New York, Coach Lou Little never worries about mid-semester exams, once the boys are safely enrolled. What grips Little is getting his prospective stars past the entrance examinations. It is told in some quarters when the former Georgetown mentor came to New York he brought along eleven good men and true, and that all but one of them failed to qualify scholastically.

The other extreme is illustrated by an incident at a small university where gridiron heroes run to the strong back and weak mind type. Although students were required to score a mark of only fifty per cent in their exams, a question was raised concerning the passing mark given to the fullback in chemistry. The president of the university asked the professor of chemistry to supply full details.

"I asked the lad two questions," the professor explained, "and he passed the test by answering one correctly. 'First I asked him the color of blue vitriol. He answered 'red' and that was wrong. Then I asked him what the formula H<sub>2</sub>O means. He said he didn't know, and that was right.'"

FORMER DIPLOMAT CALLED BY DEATH

ST. MARYS, O., Nov. 13.—Funeral arrangements were being made here today for Daniel F. Mooney, United States minister to Paraguay during the administration of President Woodrow Wilson, who died suddenly at his home here last night. Mooney was 65 years old. He had been in ill health for several years. Mooney, who was prominent in national and state politics, is survived by his wife, Mrs. Carrie Steidmann Mooney, and three brothers, including Congressman Charles A. Mooney of Cleveland.

specialties also unsettled the market. Once again Wall Street chose to ignore the big decline in brokers loans, which brings the total down to the lowest volume since January 1926. Such a decline is logical in view of the severe drop in prices and the squeezing out of thousands of small margin traders. The stock market turned dull on the early reaction and trading slowed up near the end of the first hour.

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

In the face of hostility to Jesus, a young ruler of more than ordinary faith dared to kneel at the feet of Jesus, who was about to close his earthly ministry. Jesus looked upon him with sympathy and love; and he dealt with him with absolute frankness and thoroughness. He was admitted because of his youth, his wealth, his education, his influential position and his unspotted moral character.

V. 17. "And as he was going forth into the way, there ran one to him and kneeled to him and asked him, Good teacher, what shall I do that I may inherit eternal life?"

Deep in the soul favored with human blessings there is a longing for a richer life may be found by seeking Christ. But it is a mistake to think that one can earn such a life by doing meritorious deeds.

V. 18. "And Jesus said unto him, Why callest thou me good? None is good save one, even God." The Lord was seeking to uncover the young man's motive and also to teach that he came from God and he could not call him good till he had so thought of God.

Vs. 19, 20. "Thou knowest the commandments, do not kill, do not steal, do not bear false witness, do not defraud, honor thy father and mother. And he said unto him, teacher, all these things have I observed." This young man was an ideal moral man. Here is suggested the truth that God requires more than irreproachable outward conduct.

V. 21. "And Jesus looking upon him loved him and said unto him, one thing thou lackest; go sell whatsoever thou hast and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come and follow me." Jesus looked through the commendable traits of character into the moving spirit of his life, a spirit that was selfish at the core; to break this wrong motive Jesus commanded that he sell all that he had. Then to shift his self-centered nature to its true center, Jesus said, "Come, follow me."

V. 22. "But his countenance fell at the saying, and he went away sorrowful for he was one that had great possessions." He had his chance; all depended upon the right decision; he chose wrong and we never hear of him again. His wealth was so dear to him that he would not give it up. First things must be first in the Christian life.

V. 23. "And Jesus looked round about and saith unto his disciples, How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God." The danger of all time is that money is god.

V. 24. "And the disciples were amazed at his words. But Jesus answered them again and saith unto those who followed him and saith unto them that trust in riches to enter into the kingdom of God." The emphasis here is on trust. Some of Jesus' followers had money or earthly possessions and he did not require them to dispose of them because they put their trust in him.

"It is easier for a camel to go through a needle's eye than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God." Christ likely used a proverbial expression hyperbolically indicating a very unlikely thing; here is a strong warning to those who let their mind and heart rest on money whether it be in small or large amounts.

V. 26. "And they were astonished exceedingly saying unto him, then who can be saved?" It seemed then as now that the people with money were the favored ones, greatly respected and highly honored, the recognized leaders. Without them how could a kingdom be built must have been their question.

V. 27. "Jesus looking upon them saith, with men it is impossible, but not with God; for all things are possible with God." In the divine power which God gives in lieu of human capacity is the ground of man's hope of a place in the kingdom.

Discussion on Questions S.S. Lesson

1. Why did Jesus ask the young ruler why he called him good?

2. What prevented the young man from becoming a disciple?

3. Why is morality not enough to qualify as a disciple of Christ?

4. Should the size of a fortune be limited by law and if so what should be the limit?

5. What commendable traits of

THE BASIS OF CIVILIZATION

William Howard Taft said, "No one can study the movement of modern civilization from an utterly impartial standpoint and not realize that Christianity and the spirit of Christianity is the only basis for the hope of modern civilization and the growth of popular self-government."

"The spirit of Christianity is pure democracy; it is the equality of man before God; the equality of man before the law which is as I understand it the most God-like manifestation which man has been able to make."

Christianity is promoted by the organization of the church. Why not accept the invitation and COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?—D. Carl Yoder.

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

In the face of hostility to Jesus, a young ruler of more than ordinary faith dared to kneel at the feet of Jesus, who was about to close his earthly ministry. Jesus looked upon him with sympathy and love; and he dealt with him with absolute frankness and thoroughness. He was admired because of his youth, his wealth, his education, his influential position and his unspotted moral character.

V. 17. "And as he was going forth into the way, there ran one to him and kneeled to him and asked him, Good teacher, what shall I do that I may inherit eternal life?"

Deep in the soul favored with human blessings there is a longing for a richer life may be found by seeking Christ. But it is a mistake to think that one can earn such a life by doing meritorious deeds.

V. 18. "And Jesus said unto him why callest thou me good? None is good save one, even God." The Lord was seeking to uncover the young man's motive and also to teach that he came from God and he could not call him good till he had so thought of God.

Vs. 19, 20. "Thou knowest the commandments, do not kill, do not steal, do not commit adultery, do not steal, do not bear false witness, do not defraud, honor thy father and mother. And he said unto him, teacher, all these things have I observed." This young man was an ideal moral man. Here is suggested the truth that God requires more than irreproachable outward conduct.

V. 21. "And Jesus looking upon him loved him and said unto him, one thing thou lackest; go sell whatsoever thou hast and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come and follow me." Jesus looked through the commendable traits of character into the moving spirit of his life, a spirit that was selfish at the core; to break this wrong motive Jesus commanded that he sell all that he had. Then to shift his self-centered nature to its true center. Jesus said, "Come, follow me."

V. 22. "But his countenance fell at the saying, and he went away sorrowful for he was one that had great possessions." He had his chance; all depended upon the right decision; he chose wrong and we never hear of him again. His wealth was so dear to him that he would not give it up. First things must be first in the Christian life.

V. 23. "And Jesus looked round about and saith unto his disciples, How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God." The danger of all time is that money is god.

V. 24. "And the disciples were amazed at his words. But Jesus answered them again and saith unto them that trust in riches to enter into the kingdom of God." The emphasis here is on trust. Some of Jesus followers had money or earthly possessions and he did not require them to dispose of them because they put their trust in him.

"It is easier for a camel to go through a needle's eye than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God." Christ likely used a proverbial expression hyperbolically indicating a very unlikely thing; here is a strong warning to those who let their mind and heart rest on money whether it be in small or large amounts.

V. 25. "And they were astonished exceedingly saying unto him, then who can be saved?" It seemed then as now that the people with money were the favored ones, greatly respected and highly honored, the recognized leaders. Without them how could a kingdom be built must have been their question.

V. 27. "Jesus looking upon them saith, with men it is impossible, but not with God; for all things are possible with God." In the divine power which God gives in lieu of human capacity is the ground of man's hope of a place in the kingdom.

"My boy, if you wish to go out into the world you must provide yourself with another pair of eyes, the eyes of reading and writing," said the mother to her young son, Michael Pupin, a lad in Serbia about to leave his native land for America. Serbia was being oppressed and it seemed there was little hope for her future. Michael had instilled in him rugged honesty as a good start in a strange land.

While a mule driver in Delaware, he was taught the English language and American history by the daughter of his employer. When working in New York in a cracker factory he found Bill, the engineer, a good teacher, giving practical demonstrations of self-control as he fired the engine; Michael had a hot temper and needed just the lessons which Bill gave him.

Then he met in that factory a young man, Bilharz, whose instruction helped him memorize the Declaration of Independence and many speeches of famous Americans. Henry Ward Beecher was another powerful formative influence in his life. He later attended night school at Cooper Institute, then Columbia University, graduating with high honors. He went to Europe for special study in electro-mechanics and on his return, Columbia made him a professor, and when the World War ensued, he developed in his laboratory the radio telephone—one of the great marvels of the age—for which he was publicly thanked by the President of the United States.

His success can be attributed in great measure to his making use of every opportunity to learn what he could from others.

character in the young ruler? 6. How can discipline be made to mean more to us?

George Matheson says, "As society goes on accumulating powers and gifts, the one hope of society is in men's modest and unselfish use of them; in men's caring for better things than money and ease and honor; in being able to see the riches of the world increase and not set our hearts upon them; in being able to admire and forego."

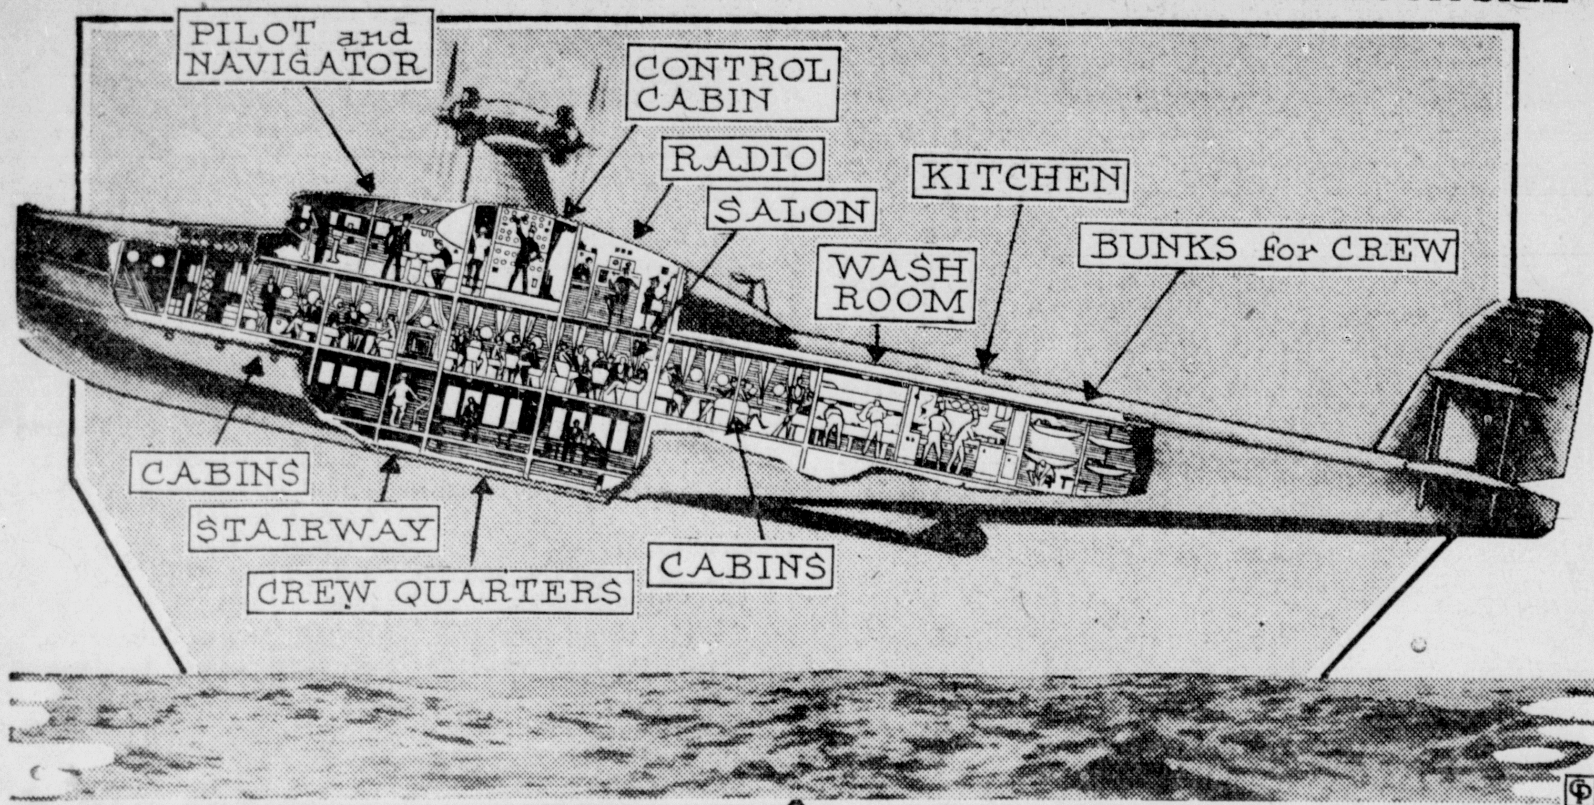

Lesson prayer, "Help us to be unselfish with any and all power in our possession; while we would go about doing good, grant that we may be right with God, having right motives and impulses and desires, out of which may proceed naturally good works."

CITY EXPENSES CUT THIS YEAR MANAGER TELLS COMMISSION

ice fund for 1930, $14,530 compared with $15,205.64 in 1929 and $16,050.83 in 1928.

The increased expenditure in the health fund is due to the fact the city now employs a health nurse who receives an annual salary of $1,800. A substantial reduction is shown in the safety fund despite the addition of one member of the police force this year.

Manager Smith estimated in his report that receipts from taxation and other sources in 1930 will amount to $64,000, in addition to approximately $18,000 revenue from the gas and auto tax fees to apply on an expenditure this year of $7,363.67 for street maintenance and repair.

Commission also placed on its first reading an ordinance providing for a one-year renewal of the existing contract with the Dayton Power and Light Co. for street lighting in order to legalize the payment of street lighting bills regardless of the outcome of the present controversy over the electric light situation in Xenia.

Another ordinance placed on its first reading at the request of the D. P. and L. Co. is designed to regulate the price of electricity for lighting traffic signals installed at local street intersections, which are electrically operated.

The city has never had a contract with the D. P. and L. Co. to pay for the cost of electricity used in operating the traffic signals at Main and Detroit Sts., Main and Columbus Sts. and the newest device at Church and Detroit Sts.

The proposed ordinance authorizes City Manager Smith to contract for this service on the following basis: for each four-way traffic signal of eight fifty-watt lamps, with not more than four lamps burning at one time and operated not more than eighteen hours a day, the city is to pay $60 a year; for each four-way signal of twelve fifty-watt lamps, with not more than four burning at one time and operated twenty-four hours a day, the cost will be $70 a year.

The voltage guaranteed to be delivered in this service is 115 volts. Isaac S. Dines, newly-elected member of the commission, was seated at the Thursday night meeting. He was recently elected to fill the unexpired term of the late E. E. Lighthiser.

How may examinations be favorably conducted in the Sunday School?

So long has little been exacted from pupils in the Sunday School that the serious business of conducting an examination must proceed with caution. For the first time it will not be well to use the word "examination" but simply state that a new method of instruction will be followed, namely a series of written questions to be answered by each member of the class. Make the questions so simple at first that none will be embarrassed, being careful to express appreciation of all written work done by the pupils. In the course of time questions can be made more difficult and these special days for written work will virtually become examination days, unannounced.

What is a Sunday School faculty meeting and how may it be made most profitable?

The old time teachers' meeting is now being displaced by workers' conferences and faculty meetings. A faculty meeting usually held monthly is composed of the officers and teachers, at which time reports are presented, problems discussed and plans made. An ideal faculty meeting should combine devotion, fellowship, business and instruction. The educational features need to be emphasized by stressing the study of a training course unit, reviewing or discussing a recent book or magazine article on religious education and discussing some practical topic of general interest such as worship, home cooperation, lesson study. The program ought to be so well planned and so wisely conducted that not a member of the faculty will absent himself.

MOVIE STARS ISSUE ULTIMATUM ON WEST COAST

It's this group of motion picture artists who have stirred up all Hollywood by charging that Fox-West Coast picture theaters are trying to dictate to the makers of motion pictures just how much they shall pay for pictures, regardless of who makes them, how much effort has gone into their creation or how much the public appreciates them. The players and producers, above, members of United Artists, have declared they will show their pictures in tents rather than in

Bachelor Round Table Shaken by Desertion

Rumble Caused by Mencken's Failure Staggers
Knights of Single Blessedness, Whose Entire Hopes Now Center on Unmarried Heir to British Throne.

"Marriage is a great institution, but who wants to live in an institution?"

So said H. L. Mencken, the founder of our bachelor round table. Mr. Mencken scoffed loud and long at the foolishness of wedlock, but discovered that he was not immune to love.

Mencken fired a shot that rang around the bachelor world when he married Sar Powell Haardt. And the rumbling echo is still rumbling. It must have been a terrible shock to the bachelor cohorts who leaned on him for support.

George Jean Nathan, his confessor, who was equally vitriolic about the marriage institution, also appears to be weakening at the post. Of course, Lillian Gish is a very beautiful reason for the weakening.

When Mencken married, he told reporters that he predicted Nathan would be married within four months.

However, Mr. Nathan still maintains that bachelors are the luckiest people in the world, and he prefers to be in the audience viewing the capers of matrimony instead of being the actor. His friendship with Lillian Gish has extended through a long period of years and the gossip trumpets have blown right along.

Alfred Cheney Johnston, another confirmed bachelor, blames the modern girl's lack of understanding. He believes the basis of happy marriage is understanding. He has photographed thousands of beautiful women, even loved several of them, but not enough to marry.

Harrison Fisher, noted illustrator, who has painted more than 15,000 beautiful women in thirty years, cannot find time to leave his paint to marry. And a wife would only interfere with his studio work, he says.

Richard Dix has also managed to escape the marriage institution, although he has the cream of the Hollywood beauty crop to select from.

Naturally, the Prince of Wales is a powerful example of bachelors. He is 37 and still unwed. Certainly, if his country is to have an heir to the throne, he will have to come under the marital yoke in the near future. But he is a very independent young man, and no doubt he reasons that with the numberless unavoidable obligations which confront him daily, he would be foolish to take on a wife who would make further demands on his time.

Another confirmed bachelor is Grant Mitchell, who is shown having a good time with the children at an orphan asylum. Although the well-known actor is fond of children, he has no intention of getting married.

Of course, there are plenty of egotistical young men who simply cannot bear to withdraw themselves from the bachelor role. They like to be fussed over by a

Although their case is still pending before the state supreme court on an appeal from the state from the action of the Greene County appellate court which had reversed their conviction in Common Pleas Court for grand larceny and ordered a second trial, Forest Nooks, colored, and Samuel Wallace stepped forth from the County Jail here Thursday as free men under an order of Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy.

Found guilty of the theft of forty chickens from Leonard Flatter, farmer, September 8, 1929, Nooks and Wallace were originally sentenced to serve from one to seven years in Ohio Penitentiary. The Appellate court reversed their joint conviction and remanded the case for a new trial. Appeal was then filed by the state from the appellate court's ruling and oral argument was submitted last October 7 before the supreme court relative to this appeal. The supreme court still has the case under advisement.

Judge Gowdy, however, ordered the two men liberated from custody Thursday because they have been in custody for more than a year, either at the penitentiary or in the county jail, while litigation over their case has been in progress in the courts.

Their original minimum sentence was one year. In view of the fact that under ordinary circumstances they would probably have been paroled at the expiration of the minimum sentence, and also because they have been in confinement in the penitentiary and county jail for more than one year, Judge Gowdy authorized their release from custody without awaiting the supreme court's decision in their case.

CITY EXPENSES CUT THIS YEAR MANAGER TELLS COMMISSION

ice fund for 1930, $14,530 compared with $15,265.64 in 1929 and $16,050.82 in 1928.

The increased expenditure in the health fund is due to the fact the city now employs a health nurse who receives an annual salary of $1,800. A substantial reduction is shown in the safety fund despite the addition of one member of the police force this year.

Manager Smith estimated in his report that receipts from taxation and other sources in 1930 will amount to $84,000 in addition to approximately $18,000 revenue from the gas and auto tax fees to apply on an expenditure this year of $7,363.67 for street maintenance and repair.

Commission also placed on its first reading an ordinance providing for a one-year renewal of the existing contract with the Dayton Power and Light Co. for street lighting in order to legalize the payment of street lighting bills regardless of the outcome of the present controversy over the electric light situation in Xenia.

Another ordinance placed on its first reading at the request of the D. P. and L. Co. is designed to regulate the price of electricity for lighting traffic signals at Main and Detroit Sts., Main and Columbus Sts. and the newest device at Church and Detroit Sts.

The proposed ordinance authorizes City Manager Smith to contract for this service on the following basis: for each four-way traffic signal of eight fifty-watt lamps, with not more than four lamps burning at one time and operated not more than eighteen hours a day, the city is to pay $60 a year; for each four-way signal of twelve fifty-watt lamps, with not more than four burning at one time and operated twenty-four hours a day, the cost will be $70 a year.

The voltage guaranteed to be delivered in this service is 115 volts.

Isaac S. Dines, newly-elected member of the commission, was seated at the Thursday night meeting. He was recently elected to fill the unexpired term of the late E. E. Lighthiser.

How may examinations be favorably conducted in the Sunday School?

So long has little been exacted from pupils in the Sunday School that the serious business of conducting an examination must proceed with caution. For the first time, it will not be well to use the word "examination" but simply state that a new method of instruction will be followed, namely a series of written questions to be answered by each member of the class. Make the questions so simple at first that none will be embarrassed, being careful to express appreciation of all written work done by the pupils. In the course of time, questions can be made more difficult and these special days for written work will virtually become examination days, unannounced.

What is a Sunday School faculty meeting and how may it be made most profitable?

The old time teachers' meeting is now being displaced by workers' conferences and faculty meetings. A faculty meeting, usually held monthly is composed of the officers and teachers, at which time reports are presented, problems discussed and plans made. An ideal faculty meeting should combine devotion, fellowship, business and instruction. The educational features need to be emphasized by stressing the study of a training course unit, reviewing or discussing a recent book or magazine article on religious education and discussing some practical topic of general interest such as worship, home cooperation, lesson study. The program ought to be so well planned and so wisely conducted that not a member of the faculty will absent himself.

MOVIE STARS ISSUE ULTIMATUM ON WEST COAST

It's this group of motion picture artists who have stirred up all Hollywood by charging that Fox-West Coast picture theaters are trying to dictate to the makers of motion pictures just how much they shall pay for pictures, regardless of who makes them, how much effort has gone into their creation or how much the public appreciates them. The players and producers, above, members of United Artists, have declared they will show their pictures in tents rather than in galaxy of feminine charmers. The trouble with them is that they have never tried to make a conquest of a bachelor girl with equal charm and attainments.

If the Prince of Wales and other prominent bachelors should suddenly decide to get married, the Knights of Single Blessedness will probably be disbanded. The royal example would, without doubt, be too much for them.

Bachelor Round Table Shaken by Desertion

Rumble Caused by Mencken's Failure Staggers
Knights of Single Blessedness, Whose
Entire Hopes Now Center on
Unmarried Heir to British Throne.

"Marriage is a great institution, but who wants to live in an institution?"

So said H. L. Mencken, the founder of our bachelor round table. Mr. Mencken scoffed loud and long at the foolishness of wedlock, but discovered that he was not immune to love.

Mencken fired a shot that rang around the bachelor world when he married Sar Powell Haardt. And the rumbling echo is still rumbling. It must have been a terrible shock to the bachelor cohorts who leaned on him for support.

George Jean Nathan, his confidant, who was equally vitriolic about the marriage institution, also appears to be weakening at the post. Of course, Lillian Gish is a very beautiful reason for the weakening.

When Mencken married, he told reporters that he predicted Nathan would be married within four months.

However, Mr. Nathan still maintains that bachelors are the luckiest people in the world, and he prefers to be in the audience viewing the capers of matrimony instead of being the actor. His friendship with Lillian Gish has extended through a long period of years and the gossip trumpets have blown right along.

Alfred Cheney Johnston, another confirmed bachelor, blames the modern girl's lack of understanding. He believes the basis of happy marriage is understanding. He has photographed thousands of beautiful women, even loved several of them, but not enough to marry.

Harrison Fisher, noted illustrator, who has painted more than 15,000 beautiful women in thirty years, cannot find time to leave his paint to marry. And a wife would only interfere with his studio work, he says.

Richard Dix has also managed to escape the marriage institution, although he has the cream of the Hollywood beauty crop to select from.

Naturally, the Prince of Wales is a powerful example of bachelorhood. He is 37 and still unwed. Certainly, if his country is to have an heir to the throne, he will have to come under the marital yoke in the near future. But he is a very independent young man, and no doubt he reasons that with the numberless unavoidable obligations which confront him daily, he would be foolish to take on a wife who would make further demands on his time.

Another confirmed bachelor is Grant Mitchell, who is shown having a good time with the children at an orphan asylum. Although the well-known actor is fond of children, he has no intention of getting married.

Of course, there are plenty of egotistical young men who simply cannot bear to withdraw themselves from the bachelor role. They like to be fussed over by a ice fund for 1930, $14,530 compared with $15,205.64 in 1929 and $16,050.83 in 1928.

The increased expenditure in the health fund is due to the fact the city now employs a health nurse who receives an annual salary of $1,800. A substantial reduction is shown in the safety fund despite the addition of one member of the police force this year.

Manager Smith estimated in his report that receipts from taxation and other sources in 1930 will amount to $64,000, in addition to approximately $18,000 revenue from the gas and auto tax fees to apply on an expenditure this year of $7,363.67 for street maintenance and repair.

Commission also placed on its first reading an ordinance providing for a one-year renewal of the existing contract with the Dayton Power and Light Co. for street lighting in order to legalize the payment of street lighting bills regardless of the outcome of the present controversy over the electric light situation in Xenia.

Another ordinance placed on its first reading at the request of the D. P. and L. Co. is designed to regulate the price of electricity for lighting traffic signals at Main and Columbus Sts., Main and Columbus Sts. and the newest device at Church and Detroit Sts.

The proposed ordinance authorizes City Manager Smith to contract for this service on the following basis: for each four-way traffic signal of eight fifty-watt lamps, with not more than four lamps burning at one time and operated not more than eighteen hours a day, the city is to pay $60 a year; for each four-way signal of twelve fifty-watt lamps, with not more than four burning at one time and operated twenty-four hours a day, the cost will be $70 a year.

The voltage guaranteed to be delivered in this service is 115 volts. Isaac S. Dines, newly-elected member of the commission, was seated at the Thursday night meeting. He was recently elected to fill the unexpired term of the late E. E. Lighthiser.

How may examinations be favorably conducted in the Sunday School?

So long has little been exacted from pupils in the Sunday School that the serious business of conducting an examination must proceed with caution. For the first time, it will not be well to use the word "examination" but simply state that a new method of instruction will be followed, namely a series of written questions to be answered by each member of the class. Make the questions so simple at first that none will be embarrassed, being careful to express appreciation of all written work done by the pupils. In the course of time, questions can be made more difficult and these special days for written work will virtually become examination days, unannounced.

What is a Sunday School faculty meeting and how may it be made most profitable?

The old time teachers' meeting is now being displaced by workers' conferences and faculty meetings. A faculty meeting, usually held monthly is composed of the officers and teachers, at which time reports are presented, problems discussed and plans made. An ideal faculty meeting should combine devotion, fellowship, business and instruction. The educational features need to be emphasized by stressing the study of a training course unit, reviewing or discussing a recent book or magazine article on religious education and discussing some practical topic of general interest such as worship, home cooperation, lesson study. The program ought to be so well planned and so wisely conducted that not a member of the faculty will absent himself.

Bachelor Round Table Shaken by Desertion

Rumble Caused by Mencken's Failure Staggers
Knights of Single Blessedness, Whose
Entire Hopes Now Center on
Unmarried Heir to British Throne.

LILLIAN GISH GRANT MITCHELL RICHARD DIX

"Marriage is a great institution, but who wants to live in an institution?"

So said H. L. Mencken, the founder of our bachelor round table. Mr. Mencken scoffed loud and long at the foolhardiness of wedlock, but discovered that he was not immune to love.

Mencken fired a shot that rang around the bachelor world when he married Sar Powell Haardt. And the rumbling echo is still rumbling. It must have been a terrible shock to the bachelor cohorts who leaned on him for support.

George Jean Nathan, his conferee, who was equally vitriolic about the marriage institution, also appears to be weakening at the post. Of course, Lillian Gish is a very beautiful reason for the weakening.

When Mencken married, he told reporters that he predicted Nathan would be married within four months.

However, Mr. Nathan still maintains that bachelors are the luckiest people in the world, and he prefers to be in the audience viewing the capers of matrimony instead of being the actor. His friendship with Lillian Gish has extended through a long period of years and the gossip trumpets have blown right along.

Alfred Cheney Johnston, another confirmed bachelor, blames the modern girl's lack of understanding. He believes the basis of happy marriage is understanding. He has photographed thousands of beautiful women, even loved several of them, but not enough to marry.

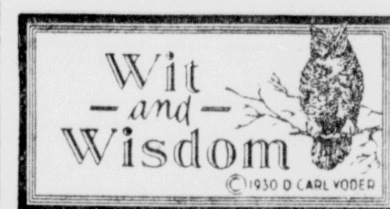

Harrison Fisher, noted illustrator, who has painted more than 15,000 beautiful women in thirty years, cannot find time to leave his paint to marry. And a wife would only interfere with his studio work, he says.

Richard Dix has also managed to escape the marriage institution, although he has the cream of the Hollywood beauty crop to select from.

Naturally, the Prince of Wales is a powerful example of bachelors. He is 37 and still unwed. Certainly, if his country is to have an heir to the throne, he will have to come under the marital yoke in the near future. But he is a very independent young man, and no doubt he reasons that with the numberless unavoidable obligations which confront him daily, he galaxy of feminine charmers. The trouble with them is that they have never tried to make a conquest of a bachelor girl with equal charm and attainments.

If the Prince of Wales and other prominent bachelors should suddenly decide to get married, the Knights of Single Blessedness will probably be disbanded. The royal example would, without doubt, be too much for them.

JUDGE FREES PAIR AWAITING APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT

Although their case is still pending before the state supreme court on an appeal from the state of the action of the Greene County appellate court which had reversed their conviction in Common Pleas Court for grand larceny and ordered a second trial, Forest Nooks, colored, and Samuel Wallace stepped forth from the County Jail here Thursday as free men under an order of Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy.

Found guilty of the theft of forty chickens from Leonard Flatter, farmer, September 8, 1929, Nooks and Wallace were originally sentenced to serve from one to seven years in Ohio Penitentiary. The Appellate court reversed their joint conviction and remanded the case for a new trial. Appeal was then filed by the state from the appellate court's ruling and oral argument was submitted last October 7 before the supreme court relative to this appeal. The supreme court still has the case under advisement.

Judge Gowdy, however, ordered the two men liberated from custody Thursday because they have been in custody for more than a year, either at the penitentiary or in the county jail, while litigation over their case has been in progress in the courts.

Their original minimum sentence was one year. In view of the fact that under ordinary circumstances they would probably have paroled at the expiration of the minimum sentence, and also because they have been in confinement in the penitentiary and county jail for more than one year, Judge Gowdy authorized their release from custody without awaiting the supreme court's decision in their case.

A CHURCH RUMMAGE SALE
A leading member of a church was hurriedly driving home when he was overtaken by a traffic officer who said, "Well, what is your alibi for speeding sixty miles an hour?"

I have just heard that the ladies of my wife's church are giving a rummage sale," the churchman replied, "and I was hurrying home to save my other pair of trousers."

The traffic officer felt he was justified and said "Hurry along."

JUDGE FREES PAIR AWAITING APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT

Although their case is still pending before the state supreme court on an appeal from the state from the action of the Greene County appellate court which had reversed their conviction in Common Pleas Court for grand larceny and ordered a second trial, Forest Nooks, colored, and Samuel Wallace stepped forth from the County Jail here Thursday as free men under an order of Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy.

Found guilty of the theft of forty chickens from Leonard Flatter, farmer, September 8, 1929, Nooks and Wallace were originally sentenced to serve from one to seven years in Ohio Penitentiary.

The Appellate court reversed their joint conviction and remanded the case for a new trial. Appeal was then filed by the state from the appellate court's ruling and oral argument was submitted last October 7 before the supreme court relative to this appeal. The supreme court still has the case under advisement.

Judge Gowdy, however, ordered the two men liberated from custody Thursday because they have been in custody for more than a year, either at the penitentiary or in the county jail, while litigation over their case has been in progress in the courts.

Their original minimum sentence was one year. In view of the fact that under ordinary circumstances they would probably have been paroled at the expiration of the minimum sentence, and also because they have been in confinement in the penitentiary and county jail for more than one year, Judge Gowdy authorized their release from custody without awaiting the supreme court's decision in their case.

CHAPTER 33

But there was a pleasant aspect of the case, too. It had brought him nearer to the object of his desire. In no other circumstances was it conceivable that he should have become so intimately acquainted with Lady Gwendolen. Before his accusation she had looked upon him as an interesting phenomenon, a poor, deluded boy; but during her visits to his cell a change had gradually taken place. He felt that he had become a human being to her, and moreover, a human being of interest. Although she had scarcely spoken during the memorable drive from the jail to his room, he had been filled with a sense of nearness and understanding which was suffocatingly blissful. He had actually been sorry to be released so soon.

The day before his release, when Lady Gwendolen and Lady Dorothy had visited him and told him that he would soon be free, had been one of the happiest of his entire life. For he was no longer oppressed by the shadow of death which had hovered so frighteningly near, and he was talking to the girl he adored.

But that was now nearly two months ago, and he had not seen Lady Gwendolen since. He had heard of her through Lady Dorothy, who continued to visit him often, but not one word or sign had he received directly from the girl he adored. He had waited and hoped. He had watched every post with longing, he had started at every knock, but no, never had it been she.

He had not seen his old friend, Andree, either, but that was because he had not answered the sweet note she sent on his release. He had heard from Lady Dorothy that the little French girl had been nearly wild with the fear that her husband, Sir George Opie, was guilty, thinking he had committed the deed when he went out to look for the two men, for she knew that a feud existed between him and Lord Winston, due to some political difference. She had heard her husband say that Lord Winston had better have a care; he, Sir George Opie, was a patient man, but beware of the wrath of a patient man, and he had stood all that was humanly possible. He had said that to her when dressing for dinner on the very night of the tragedy, and that was why she was so anxious to believe Robin guilty, and it explained her strangeness at the inquest, which he had noted and wondered about at the time. What Lady Dorothy had told him had made Robin feel betrayed; that this little French girl, the first girl he had ever kissed, had been so ready to sacrifice him for her funny, old husband, had been a shock. He couldn't answer her note after that.

But it was the trial which had just come to an end which often returned to Robin's thoughts. He had only gone to give his evidence too much to stay for the rest. But he had read about it in all the papers, and Inspector Linscott had paid him a visit one night and given him a vivid account of the affair. The trial had cleared up all the obscure bits, and the entire story of that fateful night was now known, as well as the history of the strange criminal who had been guilty.

From Flint's own evidence the following facts developed relative to the early circumstances of his life which ultimately led to the murder. It appeared that after his murder of Pierre Lestrage, which he asserted in court was done in self-defense, he, then Bruin Peters, made good his escape and chummed up with a man by the name of Donald Flint. This man of the Flint died, and it occurred to Bruin Peters that, without doing anyone any harm, here was a way out for him. Appropriating the man's papers and clothes—they were about the same build—he stepped out boldly into the world a new man, no longer Bruin Peters, but Donald Flint. And went to a new country—Australia! As for Bruin Peters, thank God, he was dead!

What ever ideas Peters had on the subject—and this was accounted to his credit—he put them behind him when the War came and joined up with an Australian regiment at the very outbreak of hostilities. He had distinguished himself, too, and was awarded medals for service, nearly winning the Victoria Cross. What ever Bruin Peters was, he was not a coward. "A brave, audacious man," as the Judge said of him in his summing-up, "but one without a sense of responsibility, who, if the facts were true against him, was not safe to have abroad in a civilized community!"

Again, it developed that after the war Bruin Peters, alias Donald Flint, came to England and carried on what was then regarded as a legitimate commerce in money. He bought the fluctuating currency of one country when it was down and sold it when it was up. He was very clever at this, and had a most remarkable sense of what would happen in the money markets of the world. In this way he had amassed a vast fortune.

Well it would have been for the brilliant financier if he limited himself to these activities (observed the Judge), but no! He must still harbor in his breast savage feelings of vengeance. He had hated Lord Winston with a wild, implacable hatred, and he had stubbornly resolved that nothing would deviate him from his early resolution to avenge himself on a man who had dared to make the attempt to turn him over to justice for the murder of Pierre Lestrage.

Regarding the knife—the knife bearing the damning initials of "B. P."—"Witness at the Bar of Justice made the deposition," observed the Judge, "that he had always kept the knife on his person because a fortune-teller once told him that as long as he was in personal possession of the knife no harm could come to him. What an irony that in more senses than one, the prophecy had come true. If he had only resisted the impulse for this inexcusable murder! Or if he had had the astuteness to withdraw the knife from the body of the murdered man, the one piece of really damaging evidence would have been gone and an innocent man might have suffered the extreme penalty in his stead! Did the prisoner," he wondered, "ever give thought to this singular circumstance after the deed was accomplished? Did he, as a superstitious man, believing in the efficacy of fortune-tellers' predictions, reflect afterward on the dread circumstance of his having left his talisman in the body of Lord Winston? The days following the murder must have been a severe tax on a man of the prisoner's credulity. He, for one, could imagine the prisoner's mental strain, as he realized his one terrible blunder, the one slip which the cleverest criminals are bound sooner or later to make."

At this moment all eyes were turned on the prisoner. Murmurs ran through the court-room. Later, men and women were to tell each other how they saw Bruin

Peters, alias Donald Flint, suddenly grow pale.

But now the prisoner, having discovered his dire loss, realized that he still had the sheath, without the knife, was worse than useless as a talisman. Indeed, it was a possession he had better do without. . . . And an evidence of guilt pointing to the poor poet, he had plenty of time to dispose of it in the garden shrubbery. If found, he had little fear. All the more, since the incriminating initials, by one of those curious coincidences not at all uncommon in the annals of crime, conveniently fitted another week-end guest in the house. Not that the prisoner made a deliberate effort to throw the guilt on Prince Boris Pozioevsky. He was far too cunning for that. With deliberate man's pockets and threw two precious objects belonging to Lord Winston out of the window, doubtless with the intention of giving the impression that the murder was committed for gain by some stranger from the outside. The jury had heard, said the court, the deposition of Mr. Willis Hanson on this point.

Were there any extenuating circumstances to the benefits of which the prisoner was entitled? The court did not think so. It was plain, brutal murder without a single palliating circumstance. Nevertheless, it was the duty of the jury to review the depositions made by the prisoner. . . .

Here Inspector Linscott had sketched out for Robin the main points of evidence as presented by Bruin Peters. How clearly it all came back to Robin on this warm August morning as he sat at his desk looking drowsily out at the fine old trees of Mecklenburgh Square!

"The fellow had actually the cheek to plead self-defense," Linscott had said, after giving Robin Smith the benefit of the Judge's and the counsel's remarks.

"Self-defense? How could he?" Robin had exclaimed.

"Oh, he had a wonderful yarn to tell, he did. You may depend on that!"

How vividly the story had brought back to Robin the events of that fatal night! How insignificant had appeared his petty annoyance at the tiny room in the face of revelations regarding this master criminal and his terrific impulses! If his story of his own flight, of his locking the door to the little room and leaping through the window, and of walking to the station in the storm, had seemed fantastic to the coroner's jury that morning at Alston Manor, how much more, wild and unbelievable must the story of Bruin Peters, alias Donald Flint, appear to the breathless, crowded court-room and to the attentive jury.

CHAPTER 39
But there was a pleasant aspect of the case, too. It had brought him nearer to the object of his desire. In no other circumstances was it conceivable that he should have become so intimately acquainted with Lady Gwendolen. Before his accusation she had looked upon him as an interesting phenomenon, a poor, deluded boy! but during her visits to his cell a change had gradually taken place. He felt that he had become a human being to her, and, moreover, a human being of interest. Although she had scarcely spoken during the memorable drive from the jail to his room, he had been filled with a sense of nearness and understanding which was suffocatingly blissful. He had actually been sorry to be released so soon.

The day before his release, when Lady Gwendolen and Lady Dorothy had visited him and told him that he would soon be free, had been one of the happiest of his entire life. For he was no longer oppressed by the shadow of death which had hovered so frighteningly near, and he was talking to the girl he adored.

But that was now nearly two months ago, and he had not seen Lady Gwendolen since. He had heard of her through Lady Dorothy, who continued to visit him often, but not one word or sign had he received directly from the girl he adored. He had waited . . . and hoped. He had watched every post with longing, he had started at every knock . . . but no, never had it been she.

He had not seen his old friend, Andree, either, but that was because he had not answered the sweet note she sent on his release. He had heard from Lady Dorothy that the little French girl had been nearly wild with the fear that her husband, Sir George Opie, was guilty, thinking he had committed the deed when he went out to look for the two men . . . for she knew that a feud existed between him and Lord Winston, due to some political difference. She had heard her husband say that Lord Winston had better have a care; he, Sir George Opie, was a patient man, but beware of the wrath of a patient man, and he had stood all that was humanly possible. He had said that to her when dressing for dinner on the very night of the tragedy, and that was why she was so anxious to believe Robin guilty, and it explained her strangeness at the inquest, which he had noted and wondered about at the time. What Lady Dorothy had told him had made Robin feel betrayed; that this little French girl, the first girl he had ever kissed, had been so ready to sacrifice him for her funny old husband, had been a shock. He couldn't answer her note after that.

But it was the trial which had just come to an end which often returned to Robin's thoughts. He had only gone to give his evidence; he had dreaded the publicity too much to stay for the rest. But he had read about it in all the papers, and Inspector Linscott had paid him a visit one night and given him a vivid account of the affair. The trial had cleared up all the obscure bits, and the entire story of that fateful night was now known, as well as the history of the strange criminal who had been guilty.

From Flint's own evidence the following facts developed relative to the early circumstances of his life which ultimately led to the murder. It appeared that after his murder of Pierre Leverage, which he asserted in court was done in self-defense, he then Bruin Peters, made good his escape and chummed up with a man by the name of Donald Flint. This man Flint died, and it occurred to Bruin Peters that, without doing anyone any harm, there was a way out for him. Appropriating the man's papers and clothes—they were about the same build—he stepped out boldly into the world a new man, no longer Bruin Peters, but Donald Flint. And went to a new country—Australia! As for Bruin Peters, thank God, he was dead!

Were not Bruin Peters' papers found on the body of Flint? The news was published in the Press, and duly a copy of the paper containing this item was sent to Lord Winston—by the new Donald Flint himself! The reason was obvious enough. Bruin Peters wished Lord Winston to believe that he was dead and out of the way. He still nursed the idea of vengeance, implicitly believing that the day when he would be able to put it into effect would inevitably come, and the knowledge that Bruin Peters was dead would put Lord Winston off his guard.

What ever ideas Peters had on the subject—and this was accounted to his credit—he put them behind him when the War came and joined up with an Australian regiment at the very outbreak of hostilities. He had distinguished himself, too, and was awarded medals for service, nearly winning the Victoria Cross. Whatever Bruin Peters was, he was not a coward. "A brave, audacious man," as the Judge said of him in his summing-up, "but one without a sense of responsibility, who, if the facts were true against him, was not safe to have abroad in a civilized community!"

Again, it developed that after the war Bruin Peters, alias Donald Flint, came to England and carried on what was then regarded as a legitimate commerce in money. He bought the fluctuating currency of one country when it was down and sold it when it was up. He was very clever at this, and had a most remarkable sense of what would happen in the money markets of the world. In this way he had amassed a vast fortune.

Well it would have been for the brilliant financier if he limited himself to these activities (observed the Judge), but no! He must still harbor in his breast savage feelings of vengeance. He had hated Lord Winston with a wild, implacable hatred, and he had stubbornly resolved that nothing would deviate him from his early resolution to avenge himself on a man who had dared to make the attempt to turn him over to justice for the murder of Pierre Leverage.

Regarding the knife—the knife bearing the damning initials of "B. P."—Witness at the Bar of Justice made the deposition, observed the Judge, "that he had always kept the knife on his person because a fortune-teller once told him that as long as he was in personal possession of the knife no harm could come to him. What an irony that, in more senses than one, the prophecy had come true. If he had only resisted the impulse for this inexcusable murder! Or if he had had the astuteness to withdraw the knife from the body of the murdered man, the one piece of really damaging evidence would have been gone and an innocent man might have suffered the extreme penalty in his stead! Did the prisoner," he wondered, "ever give thought to this singular circumstance after the deed was accomplished? Did he, as a superstitious man, believing in the efficacy of fortune-tellers' predictions, reflect afterward on the dread circumstance of his having left his talisman in the body of Lord Winston? The days following the murder must have been a severe tax on a man of the prisoner's credulity. He, for one, could imagine the prisoner's mental strain, as he realized his one terrible blunder, the one slip which the cleverest criminals are bound sooner or later to make."

At this moment all eyes were turned on the prisoner. Murmurs ran through the court-room. . . . Later, men and women were to tell each other how they saw Bruin

Paul Cavanaugh, an English actor, gets the lead opposite Gloria Swanson in the star's new picture, "Rockabye," this announcement coming on the heels of information in this column that the star was looking with little success for a leading man.

When Cavanaugh came to Hollywood, Paramount and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer staged a tug-of-war over him, with the result that he signed for six months with each company. As so often happens, the studios then promptly forgot him and he did no important work on his contract.

Samuel Goldwyn caught him on the rebound and he plays an important part with Ronald Colman in "The Prodigal" and it was in this film that Miss Swanson and her director, Tay Garnett, saw him work. Several other names, including those of Victor Varconi and in the cast. The right girl is still being sought.

Victor McLaglen will play one of the leads in Fox's picture, "Land Rush." About four years ago this story was made in a silent film under the name of "Three Bad Men," featuring George O'Brien, Tom Santschi and Frank Campeau. Benjamin Stoloff will direct this time instead of John Ford.

Coach Howard Jones of the University of Southern California appears as a football coach in the film "Maybe It's Love." His screen team lost by a score of 7 to 6 in the picture. Then years ago this real grid team against Washington State this fall and lost by exactly the same score.

First of Dorothy Mackall's starring pictures of the coming year will be "The Green Cat," a German play, with the action taking place in Paris. William Seiter will start the direction about January 1.

Twenty Years '10- Ago '30

The skating rink will open for the season November 17. Mr. Elmer Voris, who is employed with the Ringling circus in the responsible position of head chef, has arrived home to spend the winter.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Keiter, of the White Chapel Neighborhood, entertained a small company of friends at dinner at noon.

Mrs. S. P. Mallow, of the Lower Bellbrook Pike, is quite ill with pneumonia.

Fox has abandoned the title, "Waiting at the Church," because another studio had it registered and has not selected a name for the film. Paramount has a snappy title for a new film, "Confessions of a Co-ed" which is said to have been taken from an actual document by an anonymous young lady.

Sam Spewack, author of the play "Poppa" and of the novels, "The Murder in the Gilded Cage" and "The Skyscraper Murder" is adapting the story for pictures.

JOHN E. MUNGER IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

John Edmund Munger, 75, prominent Beaver Creek Twp., farmer, died at his home on the Dayton-Xenia Pike, near Alp, Thursday morning at 11 o'clock. Mr. Munger had been in failing health two years and death was due to infirmities of age and complications.

He was born April 1, 1855, the son of Harris and Elizabeth Munger and had resided in Greene County many years. His wife, who was formerly Miss Mary Ellen Weaver, died four years ago. He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. M. J. Moore, Sidney and three sons: Ralph W., Sidney, Walter R., Chicago and John H., at home. Six grandchildren and the following brothers and sisters survive: Dr. P. H. Munger, St. Paul's Park, Minn., Mrs. B. G. Smith, Dayton and Mrs. Matilda Hering, Springfield.

Mrs. Munger was a former member of the Beaver Reformed Church. Funeral services will be held at the home Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and burial will be made in the Beaver Cemetery.

PLAN DEVOTIONAL PERIODS AT SCHOOL

Devotional periods will be conducted each evening next week at the Standard Training School for church school leaders by the Rev. A. H. Beardsley, pastor of Trinity M. E. Church. It was decided at a meeting of the executive committee of the school Wednesday evening.

Final details concerning the school were discussed at the meeting and it was decided that the school will be open to any one in Greene County or outlying districts who desires to attend. The school will open promptly next Monday evening with Carl Benner as dean. Classes will convene at 7 p. m., but Mr. Benner will be at the First Presbyterian Church, where the school will be held, at 6 p. m. to receive registrations. Advance registrations can be turned in to the Rev. W. H. Tilford at any time.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The junior class held a meeting Thursday afternoon for the purpose of deciding about a Christmas dance to be sponsored by that class early in December. The high school party will probably be held the first or second week in December but a definite date will be set within the next week or two.

Decorations for the dance were voted on at the meeting. Reports from the different committees were given to show what has been done by the class so far this year. A cheering section for members of the junior class at all home basketball games was discussed but nothing decided upon. Faculty advisor for the class, Clyde Shumaker, gave a short talk on class spirit and the meeting was adjourned by the president, David Short.

The senior class was called into one room Friday morning and required to take a large state exam that is given to all seniors in Ohio. The exam is on the plan of an intelligence test covering several subjects.

Star Gazing

By RADIE HARRIS

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—In proof of the adage that "big oaks from little acorns grow." Only weighed 2 1/2 pounds when she was born. Her "blessed event" occurred in Galsay, Alberta, Canada, on Dec. 16. Was able to vote at the last election.

Hails from a paternal ancestry of ministers and bishops. Might have become a school teacher if her family hadn't moved to Hollywood in 1922.

Registered as a junior at the Hollywood high school. Was admiring the jewelry display in a showcase window one afternoon when Paul Kanner, a Universal scout, asked her whether she would like to take a screen test. Had never been inside a studio or seen a motion picture camera but didn't think she ought to refuse the "scout" his one good turn a day. Has been of "Universal" importance ever since.

During the first week of her contract saw "The Big Parade." And lay awake nights wondering whether she would ever be a big enough star to play in a John Gilbert picture. Six months later appeared with him in "Flesh and the Devil."

Would like to do "Spring Showers," a story owned by Universal. And meet the Prince of Wales. Doesn't talk "shop" in between pictures. Plays tennis instead.

Hates lap dogs, sopranos, people who quarrel in public and housework of any kind.

Loves hurdy gurdys, caviar, Micky Mouse, fortune tellers, cribbage and Skippy.

Has a horror of being trampled on in a crowd. And of getting fat. Weighs herself every week. Is as normal as her temperature—exactly 98.

Harold Lloyd, Will Rogers, Gloria Swanson, Richard Dix, Ruth Chatterton and Norma Talmadge are her favorite players. Has met none of them—with the exception of Lloyd.

Never wears jewelry unless for sentimental attachment. Which explains why she even wears her wrist watch to bed and never takes off her ankle bracelet. If there were ever a fire in her house she would grab her cameo necklace first. Prizes all of them for the same reason... his name is Paul Fejos.

Is not superstitious but claims that black cats are her voodoo. Recently was convinced of this fact when she lost the feminine lead in "The Cat Creeps." Owns a Doberman pincher called Max Von Betz. And a Cadillac Imperial.

Never uses rouge for street wear. Has never bobbed her hair. Or changed its color. Doesn't look the least bit like an actress off the screen but "acts" like one in all her pictures.

Hopes to become a great star. And retire when she is at the peak. Her parents aren't quite convinced that they approve of an actress in the family. But that doesn't prevent them from collecting her salary each week.

PORCUPINES EAT BARK, DAMAGE TREES

OGDEN, Utah, Nov. 14.—Porcupines still cause considerable damage to trees in the west in spite of a persistent campaign on the part of rangers to exterminate the pests.

One government forest ranger in the Fishlake national forest, E. L. Cox, has killed 190 porcupines this year. Last year he brought down 193.

In the higher altitudes porcupines are commonly seen in bands of from ten to thirty. They eat the bark from coniferous trees and in this way do great damage.

Instances where entire forests of western yellow pine have been destroyed in this manner have been observed.

50th ANNIVERSARY

"I'll work my head off for you!"

"All I ask in return is that you give me clean, dry quarters, and a good reliable egg-making feed like Tuxedo Egg mash. Then I'll give you all the eggs you want—all through the year!"

Tuxedo Egg mash makes eggs when prices are highest! It is setting new records of egg production for thousands of poultrymen. One reason is its content of PURE CANE MOLASSES—and Early & Daniel are specialists in the use of molasses in feeds. Another reason is that Tuxedo Egg mash is designed to meet the specific conditions of this particular section.

Because of these advantages, Tuxedo Egg mash is the most economical feed you can buy. And it is handled by the most progressive and service-giving dealers.

JOHN E. MUNGER IS CLAIMED BY DEATH

John Edmund Munger, 75, prominent Beaver Creek Twp., farmer, died at his home on the Dayton-Xenia Pike, near Alpha, Thursday morning at 11 o'clock. Mr. Munger had been in failing health two years and death was due to infirmities of age and complications.

He was born April 1, 1855, the son of Harris and Elizabeth Munger and had resided in Greene County many years. His wife, who was formerly Miss Mary Ellen Weaver, died four years ago. He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. M. J. Moore, Sidney and three sons: Ralph W. Sidney; Walter R. Chicago and John H., at home. Six grandchildren and the following brothers and sisters survive: Dr. P. H. Munger, St. Paul's Park, Minn.; Mrs. B. G. Smith, Dayton and Mrs. Matilda Hering, Springfield.

Mrs. Munger was a former member of the Beaver Reformed Church. Funeral services will be held at the home Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and burial will be made in the Beaver Cemetery.

PLAN DEVOTIONAL PERIODS AT SCHOOL

Devotional periods will be conducted each next week at the Standard Training School for church school leaders by the Rev. A. H. Beardsley, pastor of Trinity M. E. Church. It was decided at a meeting of the executive committee of the school Wednesday evening.

Final details concerning the school were discussed at the meeting and it was decided that the school will be open to any one in Greene County or outlying districts who desires to attend. The school will open promptly next Monday evening with Carl Benner as dean. Classes will convene at 7 p. m., but Mr. Benner will be at the First Presbyterian Church, where the school will be held, at 6 p. m. to receive registrations. Advance registrations can be turned in to the Rev. W. H. Tilford at any time.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

The junior class held a meeting Thursday afternoon for the purpose of deciding about a Christmas dance to be sponsored by that class early in December. The high school party will probably be held the first or second week in December but a definite date will be set within the next week or two.

Decorations for the dance were voted on at the meeting. Reports from the different committees were given to show what has been done by the class so far this year. A cheering section for members of the junior class at all home basketball games was discussed but nothing decided upon. Faculty advisor for the class, Clyde Shumaker, gave a short talk on class spirit and the meeting was adjourned by the president, David Short.

The senior class was called into one room Friday morning and required to take a large state exam that is given to all seniors in Ohio. The exam is on the plan of an intelligence test covering several subjects.
